

Contents

1	Crisis, Revolution, Reform, and edTPA in the Context of Teacher Education	1
	References	6
2	Historical Context of Teacher Assessment and Evaluation	9
	Educational Reform and Teacher Performance Assessments: A Historical Perspective	12
	The Impact of National and International Studies on Policy in the U.S.: Toward Performance Assessment in Teacher Education	16
	Issues in Connection to the Performance Assessment of Teachers	19
	Connections to Research	22
	References	23
3	The Intersection of Professionalization, Policy, Performance Assessment, and Privatization as a Conceptual Frame in Teacher Education	29
	Professionalization of Teacher Education	30
	Professionalization and Performance Assessments	34
	Performance Assessment and Teacher Education	35
	Policy and Privatization in Teacher Education	37
	References	41
4	Professionalization, Policy, Performance Assessment and Privatization in Mathematics	45
	What Does a “Typical” Mathematics Lesson Look Like in the U.S.?	47
	What Should Mathematics Teaching Look Like?	48
	What Are the Tensions Between the Two Views?	48
	A Brief History of the Reform Effort in Mathematics Education and Its Impact on Current Policy	50

Mathematics Teacher Education and the edTPA	53
The Implementation of the edTPA in a Secondary Mathematics Teacher Education Program	55
Reactions of Teacher Candidates.	58
Affordances and Constraints for the Program in Mathematics Education.	59
Conclusion.	62
References.	62
5 Performance Assessment, Policy, Privatization, and Professionalization in English Teacher Education	65
What “Counts” as Teaching and Learning in the Secondary ELA Classroom?	66
Policy and Performance Assessment in English Teacher Education: The Development and Impact of Content Area and Teacher Education Standards	72
Professionalization, Policy, and Privatization Inform Performance Assessment in English Teacher Education.	74
Intersecting Interests and English Education Pedagogies in an Age of Accountability.	75
An English Teacher Education Program at the Intersection of Policy, Privatization, Professionalization, and Performance Assessment	78
Implementing the Consequential edTPA in an English Education Program.	79
Student Teachers, Exam Scores, and Attrition: Examining the Numbers	80
Concluding Thoughts...for the Moment.	83
References.	85
6 Professionalization, Policy, Performance Assessment, and Privatization in Social Studies	89
Social Studies Content Challenges	89
Standards, High-Stakes Testing and Classroom Practice	90
Social Studies Content and the Standards Movement.	92
Professionalization: The edTPA in Social Studies as an Aspirational Document.	93
The Implementation of the edTPA in a Secondary Social Studies Teacher Education Program	95
Professionalization	97
Performance Assessment.	100
Policy.	106
Privatization in Social Studies Education	108

Affordances and Constraints for the Program in Social Studies Education	109
Concluding Thought: Gambling It All on a Losing Wager	112
References	114
7 Signature Pedagogies and Other Implications	119
Affordances and Constraints for Mathematics, English, and Social Studies Teacher Education.	120
Relationships Between Policy, Privatization, Professionalization, and Performance Assessments of Teachers	124
What are the Relationships Between Performance Assessments and Teacher Education? In What Ways is the Teaching Profession Approaching Certain Signature Pedagogies in Light of Current Reforms?	127
Is the Teaching Profession Approaching a Set of Signature Pedagogies?	127
Closing Thoughts	129
References	131
Index	135

Policy, Professionalization, Privatization, and
Performance Assessment
Affordances and Constraints for Teacher Education
Programs

Gurl, T.J.; Caraballo, L.; Grey, L.; Gunn, J.H.; Gerwin, D.;
Bembenutty, H.

2016, XV, 137 p., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-29144-4