

Contents

Part I General Introduction

|          |                                                                   |          |
|----------|-------------------------------------------------------------------|----------|
| 1 | Introduction, Definitions and Historical Aspects . . . . . | 3 |
|          | Introduction . . . . .                                            | 3        |
|          | Definitions . . . . .                                             | 5        |
|          | Historical Aspects . . . . .                                      | 7        |
|          | Ancient Civilizations . . . . .                                   | 8        |
|          | Modern Times . . . . .                                            | 10       |
|          | References . . . . .                                              | 12       |

Part II Basic Information for Cranial Osteomyelitis

|          |                                                                                       |           |
|----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 2 | Epidemiology and Risk Factors . . . . .                                        | 19 |
|          | Epidemiology . . . . .                                                                | 19        |
|          | Risk Factors for Skull Osteomyelitis . . . . .                                        | 22        |
|          | Direct Spread from Contiguous Sites . . . . .                                         | 22        |
|          | Postoperative or Secondary to Direct Trauma . . . . .                                 | 28        |
|          | Hematogenous Spread Secondary to Bacteremia or Fungemia . . . . .                     | 36        |
|          | Comorbidities . . . . .                                                               | 36        |
|          | References . . . . .                                                                  | 37        |
| 3 | Different Pathogens Involved . . . . .                                         | 45 |
|          | Collection and Sample Processing . . . . .                                            | 45        |
|          | Pathogens in Cranial Osteomyelitis . . . . .                                          | 47        |
|          | Cranial Osteomyelitis Following Contiguous Sourceof Adjacent Infections . . . . . | 50        |
|          | Cranial Osteomyelitis Secondary to Direct Inoculation . . . . .                       | 53        |
|          | Cranial Osteomyelitis via Hematogenous Bloodborne Route . . . . .                     | 55        |
|          | References . . . . .                                                                  | 56        |

|          |                                                                      |           |
|----------|----------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 4 | Histopathologic Changes . . . . .                             | 63 |
|          | Role of Histopathologic Examination . . . . .                        | 63        |
|          | Macroscopic Appearance . . . . .                                     | 64        |
|          | Microscopic Study . . . . .                                          | 65        |
|          | Acute Osteomyelitis . . . . .                                        | 65        |
|          | Chronic Osteomyelitis . . . . .                                      | 66        |
|          | Specific Osteomyelitis of the Skull . . . . .                        | 68        |
|          | References . . . . .                                                 | 73        |
| 5 | Pathophysiology and Anatomical Spreads of Infection . . . . . | 77 |
|          | Applied Anatomy of Neurocranium . . . . .                            | 77        |
|          | Extracranial Structures . . . . .                                    | 79        |
|          | Cranial Bone Formations . . . . .                                    | 83        |
|          | Intracranial Spaces . . . . .                                        | 85        |
|          | Venous Communications . . . . .                                      | 86        |
|          | Development and Progression of the Disease . . . . .                 | 87        |
|          | Virulence of the Pathogens . . . . .                                 | 87        |
|          | Patients Predisposing Causes and Comorbidities . . . . .             | 88        |
|          | Type and Location in the Skull Bones . . . . .                       | 89        |
|          | Towards a New Classification . . . . .                               | 93        |
|          | References . . . . .                                                 | 96        |

Part III   Diagnosis of Cranial Osteomyelitis

|          |                                                                                  |            |
|----------|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 6 | Main Clinical Presentations . . . . .                                     | 103 |
|          | Cranial Osteomyelitis Associated with Otorhinologic Disease . . . . .            | 104        |
|          | Cranial Vault Osteomyelitis . . . . .                                            | 104        |
|          | Skull Base Osteomyelitis . . . . .                                               | 108        |
|          | Cranial Osteomyelitis Associated with Operation or Head Injury . . . . .         | 111        |
|          | Postoperative . . . . .                                                          | 111        |
|          | Head Injury . . . . .                                                            | 113        |
|          | Cranial Osteomyelitis Associated with Hematogenous Spread of Infection . . . . . | 116        |
|          | References . . . . .                                                             | 116        |
| 7 | Laboratory Findings . . . . .                                             | 121 |
|          | Inflammatory Parameters . . . . .                                                | 121        |
|          | Blood Cultures . . . . .                                                         | 123        |
|          | Molecular Studies . . . . .                                                      | 123        |
|          | Microbiological Studies . . . . .                                                | 124        |
|          | Histopathologic Studies . . . . .                                                | 125        |
|          | References . . . . .                                                             | 125        |
| 8 | Imaging Studies . . . . .                                                 | 129 |
|          | Plain Radiographs . . . . .                                                      | 130        |
|          | Computed Tomography-Scan . . . . .                                               | 132        |

|                                                                 |            |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Magnetic Resonance Imaging . . . . .                            | 139        |
| Neurovascular Explorations . . . . .                            | 148        |
| Nuclear Medicine . . . . .                                      | 149        |
| Ultrasound Imaging . . . . .                                    | 152        |
| Electroencephalography . . . . .                                | 153        |
| References . . . . .                                            | 153        |
| 9 Differential Diagnoses: Clinical and Imaging . . . . . | 159 |
| Mimicking Clinical Presentations . . . . .                      | 160        |
| Scalp Neoplasms and Nodules . . . . .                           | 160        |
| Congenital Scalp Defects . . . . .                              | 162        |
| Vascular Lesions . . . . .                                      | 163        |
| Soft Tissue Infections . . . . .                                | 164        |
| Traumatic Lesions . . . . .                                     | 166        |
| Imaging Pattern of Cranial Vault Lesions . . . . .              | 166        |
| Eosinophilic Granuloma . . . . .                                | 167        |
| Osteoma . . . . .                                               | 168        |
| Meningioma . . . . .                                            | 169        |
| Osteosarcoma . . . . .                                          | 169        |
| Lipoma . . . . .                                                | 169        |
| Fibrous Dysplasia . . . . .                                     | 170        |
| Hemangioma . . . . .                                            | 171        |
| Epidermoid and Dermoid Cysts . . . . .                          | 173        |
| Metastases . . . . .                                            | 173        |
| Leukemias and Lymphomas . . . . .                               | 176        |
| Aneurysmal Bone Cyst . . . . .                                  | 176        |
| Leptomeningeal Cyst . . . . .                                   | 177        |
| Pseudomeningocele . . . . .                                     | 177        |
| Paget's Disease . . . . .                                       | 177        |
| Imaging Pattern of Skull Base Lesions . . . . .                 | 178        |
| Tumoral Lesions . . . . .                                       | 180        |
| Pseudo-tumoral Lesions . . . . .                                | 181        |
| References . . . . .                                            | 186        |

Part IV Management of Cranial Osteomyelitis

|                                                                 |            |
|-----------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 10 General Considerations and Surgical Therapy . . . . . | 191 |
| General Considerations . . . . .                                | 191        |
| Neurosurgical Procedures . . . . .                              | 193        |
| Extracranial Infection with Mild Osteomyelitis . . . . .        | 193        |
| Cranial Vault Osteomyelitis . . . . .                           | 194        |
| Skull Base Osteomyelitis . . . . .                              | 196        |
| Intracranial Suppurations . . . . .                             | 198        |
| Other Unusual Measures . . . . .                                | 200        |

|                                                                     |            |
|---------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| Surgery for Concomitant Paranasal Sinus and Ear Infection . . . . . | 201        |
| Complementary Sinogenic Surgery . . . . .                           | 203        |
| Complementary Otogenic Surgery . . . . .                            | 203        |
| Post-craniotomy Osteomyelitis . . . . .                             | 204        |
| Scalp and Cranial Bone Reconstruction . . . . .                     | 208        |
| Scalp Reconstruction . . . . .                                      | 208        |
| Cranial Bone Reconstruction . . . . .                               | 211        |
| Timing of Reconstruction . . . . .                                  | 212        |
| Conservative Versus Surgical Therapy . . . . .                      | 214        |
| References . . . . .                                                | 218        |
| 11 Antimicrobial and Medical Therapy . . . . .               | 225 |
| Choice of Antimicrobial Agents . . . . .                            | 226        |
| Duration of Antimicrobial Therapy . . . . .                         | 228        |
| Monitoring Response to Treatment . . . . .                          | 229        |
| Supportive Therapy . . . . .                                        | 230        |
| Initial Resuscitation and Severe Infection Issues . . . . .         | 230        |
| Anticonvulsants . . . . .                                           | 230        |
| Corticosteroids . . . . .                                           | 230        |
| Anticoagulation . . . . .                                           | 231        |
| Analgesics and Antipyretics . . . . .                               | 231        |
| Comorbidities . . . . .                                             | 232        |
| Functional Rehabilitation . . . . .                                 | 232        |
| References . . . . .                                                | 232        |
| 12 Adjuvant Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy . . . . .              | 237 |
| Definition and Principles of Hyperbaric Oxygen . . . . .            | 237        |
| Therapeutic Uses of Hyperbaric Oxygen . . . . .                     | 238        |
| Oxygen Tolerance in Bacteria . . . . .                              | 239        |
| Biochemical and Cellular Effects in Infected Tissues . . . . .      | 240        |
| Hyperbaric Oxygenation Therapy in Osteomyelitis . . . . .           | 240        |
| Hyperbaric Oxygenation Therapy in Cranial Osteomyelitis . . . . .   | 241        |
| References . . . . .                                                | 245        |
| 13 Outcomes and Prognoses . . . . .                          | 249 |
| General Concerns . . . . .                                          | 249        |
| Recurrence . . . . .                                                | 251        |
| Malignancy as Late Complication . . . . .                           | 252        |
| Sequelae . . . . .                                                  | 252        |
| Mortality . . . . .                                                 | 253        |
| References . . . . .                                                | 254        |

Part V Special Conditions in Cranial Osteomyelitis

|                                                 |            |
|-------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 14 Unusual Pathogens . . . . .           | 259 |
| Tuberculosis . . . . .                          | 259        |
| Syphilis . . . . .                              | 264        |
| Salmonellosis . . . . .                         | 265        |
| Actinomycosis . . . . .                         | 266        |
| Aspergillosis . . . . .                         | 268        |
| Cryptococcosis . . . . .                        | 271        |
| Mucormycosis . . . . .                          | 272        |
| Hydatidosis . . . . .                           | 273        |
| References . . . . .                            | 274        |
| 15 Special Clinical Situations . . . . . | 285 |
| Pott's Puffy Tumor . . . . .                    | 286        |
| Infected Cephalhematoma . . . . .               | 293        |
| Osteomyelitis of the Clivus . . . . .           | 294        |
| Calvarial Sclerosing Osteomyelitis . . . . .    | 295        |
| Cranial Osteomyelitis in HIV and AIDS . . . . . | 297        |
| References . . . . .                            | 300        |

Part VI Prevention of Cranial Osteomyelitis

|                                                                        |            |
|------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 16 Preventive Measures Against Cranial Bone Infection . . . . . | 311 |
| General Considerations . . . . .                                       | 311        |
| Preventing Contiguous Sites of Infections . . . . .                    | 312        |
| Neurosurgical Prophylactic Procedures . . . . .                        | 312        |
| Measures Taken Following Scalp Injury . . . . .                        | 314        |
| Nursing Implication . . . . .                                          | 315        |
| References . . . . .                                                   | 315        |
| Index . . . . .                                                 | 319 |

Cranial Osteomyelitis

Diagnosis and Treatment

AKHADDAR, A.

2016, XVII, 325 p. 162 illus., 81 illus. in color.,

Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-30266-9