

Preface

These are the proceedings of the 10th International Conference on Risks and Security of Internet and Systems (CRiSIS 2015). The conference brought together academic researchers and industry developers, who discussed the state of the art in technology for exploring risks and security issues in Internet applications, networks, and systems. Each year papers are presented covering topics including trust, security risks and threats, intrusion detection and prevention, access control, and security modeling.

The conference program included seven technical papers sessions that covered a broad range of topics from trust and privacy issues and risk management to cloud systems and cryptography. The conference program also included an invited talk by Dr. George Leventakis (Senior Security Expert, Center for Security Studies, Hellenic Ministry of Public Order and Citizen Protection) entitled “European Program for Critical Infrastructure Protection. Linking Policy, Research and Implementation” and a tutorial session given by David Espes (Lecturer and Researcher, UMR CNRS lab-STIIC and University of Western Brittany) on “Software-Defined Networking Security.” The conference attracted many high-quality submissions, each of which was assigned to four Program Committee members for review and the final acceptance rate was 35 %.

We would like to express our thanks to the various people who assisted us in organizing the event and formulating the program. We are very grateful to the Program Committee members for their timely and rigorous reviews of the papers. Our gratitude also goes to the University of the Aegean and especially to Prof. Christos Kalloniatis, for supporting the organization of the conference. Finally we would like to thank all of the authors who submitted papers for the event and contributed to an interesting set of conference proceedings.
