1 The Concept of Cultural Character in Public Housing Design 1
1.1 General Idea About the Book 1
1.2 Purpose and Coverage of the Research 2
1.3 Civilisation and the Indigenous Culture Demands in Space Uses 4
1.4 Public Housing Concept in Nigeria, Conflict in User and Providers' Views 5
1.4.1 Cultural Context of Northern Part of Nigeria 6
1.4.2 Seeking to Regulate Indiscriminate Housing Transformation 7
1.4.3 Culture Attributes Are Desired by Public Housing Users in Design 7
1.5 Summary 9
References 9

2 The Dimension of Public Housing in Nigeria 13
2.1 Introduction 13
2.2 Optimising User Activity–Space Relations Through Control Levels 14
2.3 Historical Outlook of the Environmental Setting 15
2.4 Impact of Language Distribution in Nigerian Regional Relations 17
2.5 Public Housing Situation in Nigeria 17
2.6 Urban Migrants and Housing Impulse in Nigeria 23
2.7 Persistent Dissatisfaction of Public Housing Residents with Provisions 23
2.8 Summary 24

3 Culture as an Integral Phenomenon in Housing Space Transformation 27
3.1 Introduction 27
3.2 Culture and Cocreation of Human Spaces 28
3.3 Spatial Morphological Tendencies in Public Housings 29
3.4 Adaptation of Culture in Urban Building Configuration 30
3.5 Housing Transformation in Culture-Sensitive Societies 30
3.6 Outline of Transformation Threshold Essentials 31
3.6.1 Sustainable Housing Transformation and Sustainable Technologies 31
3.6.2 Transformation as a Cultural Desire of Habitation 33
3.6.3 Shortfall of Transformation Coverage by Building Regulations 33
3.7 Public Housing Transformation 34
3.8 Reflecting Culture and Housing Theories in Housing Transformation 35
3.8.1 Etic and Emic Theory of Cross-Cultural Research 35
3.8.2 Man–Environment Relation (MER) Design Theory 36
3.8.3 Explanatory Theory of Environment–Behaviour Relation (EBR) 36
3.8.4 User-Centred Theory (UCT) 37
3.8.5 Evidence-Based Design (EBD) 37
3.9 Summary 38

4 Search for Cultural Attributes Appropriate for Design Ideals 41
4.1 Connecting with Users' Experience 41
4.2 Characterising Users' Perception 42
4.3 Ethnography: The Search for Cultural Determinants and Patterns 42
4.3.1 Hausa Ethnic Group 42
4.3.2 Fulani Ethnic Group 43
4.3.3 Kanuri Ethnic Group 45
4.3.4 Nupe Ethnic Group 46
4.3.5 Tiv Ethnic Group 48
4.3.6 Gbagyi Ethnic Group 52
4.4 Life at the Root, Identifying the Core Space Use Values 57
4.5 Sustainable Indigenous Sociocultural Attributes 59
4.5.1 Accessibility 60
4.5.2 Visitors' Reception 61
4.5.3 Outdoor Relaxation 66
4.5.4 Household Distribution 67
4.5.5 Social Events and Domestic Chores 68
4.5.6 Cooking 71

4.6 Dwelling Layout Patterns . . . 72
4.7 Spatial Indigeneity at the Root Space Uses . . . 74

5.1 Introduction . . . 79
5.2 Public Housing Survey . . . 80
5.2.1 Derivation of Measurement Concept . . . 80
5.3 Core Socio-demographic Attributes of Inhabitants . . . 82
5.3.1 Family Structure . . . 82
5.3.2 Residency Duration . . . 83
5.3.3 Age of Household Heads . . . 83
5.3.4 Frequency in Transformation Occurrence . . . 84
5.3.5 Occupants' Residency Cycle . . . 84
5.3.6 Occupancy Cycle in Relation to the Types of Changes Made . . . 85
5.4 Determining Link with the Root Through Psychometric Process . . . 86
5.4.1 Exploratory Factor Analysis (EFA) . . . 87
5.4.2 CFA and Second-Order SEM for the Hypothesised Composites . . . 88

6 Search for Design Patterns and Design Indices in Transformed Housing Units . . . 101
6.1 Introduction . . . 101
6.2 Transformed Layout Configurations . . . 102
6.3 Effect of Built Environment Control Levels . . . 102
6.4 Basic Transformation Types Among Inhabitants . . . 103
6.5 Architectural Patterns of Transformed Layouts . . . 106
6.5.1 Conversion of Spaces for Other Functions . . . 107
6.5.2 Extension of Spaces . . . 111
6.5.3 Addition of Spaces . . . 113
6.5.4 Reconfiguration of Spaces . . . 120
6.6 Conclusion . . . 126

7 Cultural Determinants and Spatial Patterns of Public Housing Design Framework . . . 129
7.1 Introduction: Recapitulating the Emerging Design Standpoint . . . 129
7.2 Establishing the Implicit Findings . . . 130
7.3 Searching for the Implicit Meaning . . . 133
7.3.1 Inferences on Cultural Determinants in the Formation of Design Guidelines . . . 133

7.3.2 Inferences on Spatial Pattern in the Formation of Design Guideline . . . 134
7.4 The Implicit Domains . . . 134
7.4.1 Functionality Character . . . 136
7.4.2 Ordering of Spaces . . . 139
7.4.3 Territorial Control . . . 142
7.4.4 Transformation Practice . . . 142
7.4.5 Social System . . . 145
7.4.6 Spatial Patterns . . . 146
7.4.7 Space Formation . . . 148
7.5 Re-adaptation of Cultural Attributes; Public Housing Design Framework . . . 153
7.5.1 Culture-Responsive Design . . . 154
7.5.2 Emerging Urban Architectural Character . . . 154
7.6 Conclusion . . . 155
