

Contents

Part I The Subjective Theory of Value and Praxeology

1	Menger's Subjective Theory of Value: Choice Under Uncertainty	3
2	Mises' Praxeology	5
3	Mises' Apriorism	7
4	The Universality of Praxeology	9
5	Praxeology and Leadership	13
6	Leadership as a Process of Exchange Under Uncertainty	15
7	Discussion Scope and Outline	19

Part II The Principles and Methods of Mises' Praxeology

8	Methodological Apriorism	27
8.1	The Criterion of Mises for Accepting a Statement A Priori.	27
8.1.1	The Need for A Priori Statements	28
8.1.2	Establishing A Priori Claims	28
8.2	Mises' Two A Priori Principles of Cognition	30
8.2.1	The A Priori Praxeological Structure of the Mind	32
8.2.2	The A Priori Power of the Human Senses	34
8.3	The A Priori of Regularity of Events	36
8.4	The A Priori of Final Cause In Action	37
9	Methodological Principles Regarding the Role of Empirical Data in Praxeology	41
9.1	Methodological Subjectivism.	43
9.1.1	The Subjectivity of Action Situational Facts	43
9.1.2	Subjectivity and Irregularity.	45
9.1.3	The Shared Nature of Subjective Action Facts	48

9.2	Methodological Individualism	49
9.2.1	The Concept of Methodological Individualism	50
9.2.2	The Action Origin of Social Facts	52
9.3	Methodological Dualism	57
9.3.1	The Methodological Consequences of Irregularity	57
9.3.2	Characteristics of Social Science Based on Dualism.	61
9.3.3	Examples of Qualitative Prediction or Laws	63
9.4	The Role of Empirical Testing and Forecasting.	65
9.4.1	von Mises' Rejection of Empirical Research.	66
9.4.2	von Mises Position on Subsidiary Assumptions	69
9.4.3	Evolving the Role of Empirical Data in Theory Development	70
10	The Theory of Human Action, Its A Priori Categories and Assumptions	75
10.1	The A Priori Subjective Theory of Value	76
10.2	The Prerequisites of Action	77
10.2.1	The Prerequisite of Dissatisfaction	77
10.2.2	The Prerequisite of an Image of a Better State (Goal Image)	79
10.2.3	The Prerequisite of Belief in Non-futility of Action (Expectation/Hope)	79
10.2.4	The Category of Regularity as a Corollary of Expectation and Imagination	80
10.2.5	The Subjectivity of the Prerequisites of Action	80
10.3	Ends and Means	81
10.3.1	Action as Exchange	81
10.3.2	Goods	82
10.3.3	The Subjective Theory of Capital and Production.	83
10.3.4	The Role of Capital in Universal Praxeology	84
10.3.5	The Subjective Theory of Wealth.	85
10.3.6	The Subjective Theory of Cost.	85
10.3.7	The Subjective Theory of Profit and Loss	86
10.4	Time as a Category of Action.	86
10.4.1	Time Duration	87
10.4.2	Time Preference	88
10.4.3	Time and Higher Order Goods.	88
10.5	Uncertainty and Speculation	89
10.6	Clarifying the Concept of Purposeful Action and Rational Behavior.	91
10.6.1	Rational Versus Irrational Action.	92
10.6.2	Purposeful Action Versus Unconscious Mental Processes and Habits	93
10.6.3	The A Priori of Cues to Action.	95

11	Methodological Procedures in Praxeology	99
11.1	The Procedures of von Mises	99
11.1.1	A Summary of the Steps of Building Praxeological Theorems	101
11.1.2	The Nature of Praxeological Theorems	102
11.1.3	Imaginary Constructions—The Method of Praxeology	103
11.1.4	Imaginary Constructions Employed by von Mises	105
11.1.5	Value Freedom in Praxeology	105
11.2	von Mises' Method of Economics Briefly Described	109
11.2.1	The Static Method and Entrepreneurship as Change Agency	109
11.2.2	Employing the Static Method to Understand the Process of Action Between Entrepreneurship, the Division of Labor and Consumer Sovereignty	112
11.2.3	The Business Cycle Theory of von Mises; The Use of Action-Based Definitions and Empirical Assumptions	116
11.2.4	Empirical Issues in von Mises' Economics; Falsification Based on Assumptions	118
12	Distinguishing Features of Praxeology	121
 Part III Entrepreneurship, Imitation and Innovation
13	Praxeology Versus Social Evolution as A Priori Frameworks	129
14	Entrepreneurship as Evolution of Action	133
15	The Ultimate A Priori of Discovery	137
16	The Logic of Perceived Possibilities—Praxeology and the Process of Evolutionary Learning	141
17	Defining Innovation from a Praxeological Perspective	145
18	The “A Priori” Category of Imagination	149
19	Some A Priori Aspects of Learning	153
 Part IV The Human Action of Leadership
20	Conceptualizing Leadership	159
20.1	Trait Theories of Leadership	160
20.2	Behavioral Leadership Theories	160
20.3	Situational Leadership Theories	161
20.4	Information Processing Perspective on Leadership	162
20.5	Transformational Leadership Theories	162

21	Conceptualizing Leadership Action Praxeologically	167
22	The Follower Purposeful Response	171
23	The Category of the Response Cue (R Cue)	173
24	The Subjective Theory of Value and Following	177
25	Uncertainty	181
25.1	Follower Habit and Entrepreneurship	183
25.2	Coordination of Knowledge	186
26	Power as a Category of Leadership Action	191
26.1	The Subjective Theory of Value and Power	192
26.2	The Subjective Value of Authority	193
26.3	Power and Habit	195
26.4	How Power Is Generated and Consumed	196
26.5	Power and the Distribution of Knowledge	198
27	Meta Leadership	201
27.1	Cooperation and Hierarchy	202
 Part V Synthesis
28	The Principles of Praxeology and Its Role as a Method of Social Science	207
29	Evolution and Change in Action	211
30	Leadership	215
Epilogue		221
Bibliography		223
Index		241

Understanding Leadership in Complex Systems

A Praxeological Perspective

Tonsberg, T.A.; Henderson, J.S.

2016, XVII, 245 p. 59 illus., 42 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-40444-8