

Contents

1	The Emergence of Student Evaluation in Higher Education	1
	Introduction	1
	Origins of Student Feedback	3
	Emergence of Student Evaluation in the United States Higher Education	4
	Early Adopter: Student Evaluation in Australian Higher Education	8
	Conclusion	11
2	Research on the Design and Function of Student Evaluation	13
	Introduction	13
	Primary Research on Student Evaluation	15
	The Limits of Student Ratings-Based Models	19
	The Need to Broaden the Conventional Assumptions of Student Evaluation	22
	Potential Limitations of Quantitative Student Evaluation	23
	Conclusion	26
3	What Higher Education Teachers Think About Quantitative Student Evaluation	29
	Introduction	29
	Setting the Context	30
	Exploring Tensions Around Student Evaluation	32
	The Importance of Professional Versus Institutional Interest	35
	Multi-voicedness: Differing Teacher Responses to Key Tensions	39
	Epistemological Tensions Around Contemporary Quantitative Evaluation	41
	Conclusion	42
4	Analysing the Potential of Student Evaluation in Practice	45
	Introduction	45
	Cultural Historical Activity Theory (CHAT) Foundations of the Research	46

CHAT as a Form of Developmental Research	49
Selecting Suitable Locations for the Case Studies	51
The Role of the Researcher.	54
Engaging Educational Leaders	55
Engaging Teachers in the Research	58
Data Collection Methods	62
Forms of Data Interpretation.	64
Conclusion	65
5 Student Evaluation in Situated Practice—The Case of a Recently Designed Program	67
Introduction.	67
Initial Activities to Formulate the Action Research	69
Agreed Action Research Cycle—Case Study One.	70
Formulating Evaluative Questions	71
Action Research Questions—Case Study One	71
Initial Student Evaluation Questions: Semester One	72
Outcomes of the First Action Research Semester.	73
Analysis of the First Cycle of Action Research-Evaluation	77
Outcomes of the Second Action Research Semester	79
Outcomes of the Third Action Research Semester	81
Interview Data from Action Research Participants.	84
Conclusion	88
6 Student Evaluation in Situated Practice—The Case of an Established Program	89
Introduction.	89
Initiating the Action Research Project	91
Agreed Action Research Model: First Semester	94
Outcomes of First Action Research Semester.	95
Initial Post-semester Workshop.	99
Outcomes of Second Action Research Semester	102
Outcomes of Third Action Research Semester.	110
Interview Data from Action Research Participants.	114
Conclusion	118
7 Assurance or Improvement: What Work Can Student Evaluation Most Effectively Perform?	121
Introduction.	121
The First Plane: Personal Engagement in Shared Activities (Apprenticeship)	123
The Second Plane: Interpersonal Engagement (Guided Participation).	127
The Third Plane: Community (Participatory Appropriation)	131
Conclusion	132

8	Assessing the Developmental Potential of Student Feedback	135
	Introduction.	135
	Transformative Learning.	136
	Horizontal and Dialogical Learning	141
	Subterranean Learning	145
	Conclusion	148
9	Charting New Approaches to Student Evaluation	151
	Introduction.	151
	The Emergence of Student Evaluation in Higher Education	152
	Student Evaluation as a Contestable Activity	154
	Professionalism, Casualisation and Consumerism	158
	Developmental Potential of Student Evaluation	162
	Toward a New Student Learning Evaluation Model.	165
	The Learning Evaluation Cycle	167
	Conclusion	172
	Appendix	175
	References	181

Student Evaluation in Higher Education

Reconceptualising the Student Voice

Darwin, S.

2016, XXI, 185 p. 3 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-41892-6