1	Introduction: Biologically Active Compounds	1
	Lech Wojciech Szajdak
Part I Biologically Active Substances in Cropping Systems
2	Free, Bounded, and Included in Humic Acids Amino Acids: Thermal Properties of Humic Acids from Cropping Systems	25
	Lech Wojciech Szajdak, Irena Życzyńska-Bałoniak, and Kazimiera Wegner
3	Conversions and Pathways of Organic Carbon and Organic Nitrogen in Soils	53
	Stanisław Kalembasa and Dorota Kalembasa
4	Free Sulfuric Amino Acids and Rhodanese in Soils Under Rye Cropping and Crop Rotation	91
	Lech Wojciech Szajdak and Teodor Rusu
5	Amino Acids, Indole-3-Acetic Acid, Stable and Transient Radicals, and Properties of Humic and Fulvic Acids as Affected by Tillage System	113
	Lech Wojciech Szajdak, Miguel L. Cabrera, and Adam Jezierski
6	Rate of Leaching of Organic and Inorganic Compounds in Tilled and Orchard Soils	131
	Lech Wojciech Szajdak, Jerzy Lipiec, Anna Siczek, Urszula Kotowska, and Artur Nosalewicz
7	Impact of Long-Term Agricultural Management and Native Forest Ecosystem on the Chemical and Biochemical Properties of Retisols' Organic Matter	149
	Alar Astover, Lech Wojciech Szajdak, and Raimo Kõlli

Part II The Physiological Importance of Biologically Active Substances

8	Auxin, One Major Plant Hormone, in Soil	175
	Junichi Ueda, Marian Saniewski, and Kensuke Miyamoto
9	Transformations of Organic Matter in Soils Under Shelterbelts of Different Ages in Agricultural Landscape	211
	Lech Wojciech Szajdak, Victoria Maryganova, Eugene Skakovskii, and Ludmila Tychinskaya
10	Phytohormone in Peats, Sapropels, and Peat Substrates	247
	Lech Wojciech Szajdak
11	Cranberry: A Plant Growing on Organic Soils with a Broad Spectrum of Pharmaceutical and Medical Use.....	273
	Lech Wojciech Szajdak and Lydia I. Inisheva
12	The Importance of Horticultural Growing Media and Biochemical Processes	287
	Lech Wojciech Szajdak, Katarzyna Styła, Wioletta Gaca, Teresa Meysner, Marek Szczepański, and Jacek Stanisław Nowak

Bioactive Compounds in Agricultural Soils
