

Contents

1	Two Sociological Traditions in Latin America	1
1.1	Deprovincializing Social Theory	1
1.2	The Limits of “Academic Sociology” in Mexico, and Why They Must Be Transcended	4
1.3	The Geographic-Epistemic Shift in Gino Germani’s Theory of Modernization	8
1.4	Dependency Theory: An Incomplete Critique of Modernization Theory	10
1.5	Positivism as Ideology	13
1.6	Towards a New Culture Under the Sign of Humanism	15
2	Octavio Paz: A Critique of Sociology or a Critical Sociology?	21
2.1	An Approach to the Sociology of Octavio Paz	21
2.2	The Mexican Revolution and the Experience of a Postcolonial Modernity	28
2.3	A Humanist-Sociological Critique of Sociology	34
2.4	The Collège de Sociologie and the Heterological Sociology of the Sacred	37
3	From Poetic Experience to Poetic Sociology	43
3.1	The Epistemological Dimension of Poetic Experience	45
3.2	The Poetic Experience as Experience of Otherness and Its Normative Consequences	51
3.3	The Poetic Sociology of Global Modernity	54
	References	71

Postcolonial Reconstruction: A Sociological Reading of

Octavio Paz

Kozlarek, O.

2016, XVI, 76 p., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-44301-0