

Contents

General Introduction and Motivation	1
I Intergenerational Income Mobility and Education
1 Introduction	7
2 Related Literature	11
3 Education Policy and Intergenerational Income Mobility	19
3.1 Public Education and Equality of Opportunity	19
3.1.1 Intergenerational Correlation of Lifetime Incomes	20
3.1.2 Impact of Public Education Policy	24
3.2 Public Education and Private Human Capital Investment . . .	26
3.2.1 Private Human Capital Investment and Income Mobility	27
3.2.2 Public Education, Private Human Capital Investment and Income Mobility	34
3.2.3 Impact of Public Education Policy	40
3.3 Implications	42
4 Intergenerational Income Persistence in Germany: the Role of Education and Occupation	45
4.1 Income Persistence across Generations	46
4.1.1 Theoretical Background	46
4.1.2 Immobility of Income across Generations	47
4.2 Intergenerational Transmission of Income Inequality	53
4.2.1 Decomposition of Intergenerational Income Persistence .	53
4.2.2 Pathways of Intergenerational Transmission	57
4.2.3 Intergenerational Transmission	64
4.3 Implications	77
5 Conclusions	81

II Social Beliefs about Income Mobility and the Demand for Redistribution

6	Introduction	87
7	Related Literature	91
8	Social Beliefs and Redistributive Politics	95
8.1	Incentives to Work and the Demand for Redistribution	95
8.1.1	Optimal Decision under Certainty	96
8.1.2	Optimal Decision under Uncertainty: Dynastic Learning	103
8.2	Social Beliefs, Inequality of Opportunity, and the Demand for Redistribution	107
8.2.1	Stable Beliefs and Long-Term Equilibrium	108
8.2.2	Influencing Factors of Long-Term Equilibrium	113
8.2.3	Equality of Opportunity and Income Mobility	122
8.3	Implications	125
9	Income Mobility and Preferences for Redistribution: Empirical Observations	129
10	Conclusions	133
	Final Remarks	137
	References	141
	Appendix	147
A	Derivation of the Intergenerational Income Immobility	147
A.1	Income Elasticity in Absence of Public Education	147
A.2	Public Education and Income Correlation across Generations	149
B	Sequential Decomposition of Income Immobility	151
C	Beliefs Regarding Income Determinants	160
C.1	Derivation of the Expected Utility	160
C.2	Derivation of the Social Welfare Function	161
C.3	Inequality of Opportunity and Incentives to Work	162

C.4	Long-Term Equilibrium and its Influencing Factors . . .	162
-----	---	-----

<http://www.springer.com/978-3-658-10464-1>

Intergenerational Income Mobility and Redistributive
Policy

Schad, M.

2016, XV, 172 p. 2 illus., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-658-10464-1