

Vorwort

During my dissertation project, I have taken a profound path of development with many hurdles. But especially these hurdles have made my path so irreplaceably experiencing. However, without that many support from all kind of people, my research endeavor could have never taken the same fruitful direction.

My biggest thanks go thus to my supervisor Prof. Dr.-Ing. Evi Hartmann for her absolute professional support and her very valuable inputs during all my research stages. She has guided and encouraged me to manage all the throwbacks and to always keep my dissertation project on track. Looking back, I see in her more a mentor than a supervisor today.

I would like to thank Dr. Roger Moser for all his expedient remarks, his patience for explanations and his teaching to have always an open mind for new ideas. I am further thankful to my research colleagues for all the insightful discussions, encouraging words and contributions they have made. Thank you Alexander Spickermann, Haritha Saranga, Heiko von der Gracht, Inga-Lena Darkow and Tobias Schäfers.

I am glad that I could team really marvelous colleagues at the Chair of Supply Chain Management. Thank you for your open ears, helpful talks, motivating words and an outstanding team spirit, also for far beyond the dissertation project.

I finally would like to say thank you very much to my family, my girlfriend and friends for their strong support to further pursue my ideas even in case of setbacks. Knowing that I can count on my family and my girlfriend anytime helped me to overcome any deadlocks and critical moments on my path.

Micha J. Hirschinger

Essays on Supply Chain Management in Emerging
Markets

Hirschinger, M.

2016, XV, 124 p. 9 illus., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-658-11945-4