

Contents

1 Mapping the Terrain: Examining Discourses on Disability and the Family	1
1.1 Introducing the Book	1
1.2 Defining Disability	5
1.3 Perspectives on Disability: The Impaired Body and the Disabling Society	8
1.3.1 Disability and the Medical Model	9
1.3.2 Disability and Social Stigma	11
1.3.3 Emergence of the Social Model	11
1.3.4 Disability and Embodiment	14
1.4 Perspectives on Intellectual/Mental Disabilities	15
1.4.1 Intellectual Disability and Culture	16
1.5 Disability and the Family: Changing Discourses and Practices	20
1.5.1 Disability and the Family in India	22
1.6 The History of Autism: Evolution of a Category	25
1.6.1 Kanner and Asperger: Foundational Insights	26
1.6.2 Psychoanalytical Perspective: Refrigerator Mothers and Damaged Children	28
1.6.3 Re(de)fining the Category	30
1.7 Autism in a Cross-Cultural Perspective	32
1.7.1 Autism in India	34
1.8 Overview of the Book	37
References	40
2 “There Is Something Wrong with My Child”: Encounter with Autism	47
2.1 Symptom Recognition and Atypical Development	48
2.2 Diagnosis Stories: Seeking Answers	55
2.3 Dealing with Diagnosis: From Despair to ‘Acceptance’	58
2.4 Case Studies	62
2.5 Making Sense of the Disability: Cultural Models of Disability	64

2.6	Multiple Meanings of Autism	67
2.6.1	Discussion: Contradictory Constructions of a Complex Condition	72
2.7	Autism and Everyday Life: Accounts of Family Routines	73
2.7.1	Divya and Her Family: Sharing Roles and Responsibilities	75
2.7.2	Aashu and His Family: Engagement and Inclusion	76
2.7.3	Discussion: Constructing Disability Through Everyday Practices	77
	References	78
3	Unending Care and an Uncertain Future: The Challenges of Parenting a Child with Autism	81
3.1	The Challenges of Parenting a Child with Autism	82
3.2	Perspectives on Motherhood	83
3.3	Experiences from Fieldwork	88
3.4	Mothering as Ideology and Practice	89
3.5	Entrapment and Empowerment: Experiences of Motherhood	93
3.5.1	Discussion: Disability, Personhood and Gender	96
3.6	Fatherhood and Disability: Encounters and Experiences	99
3.6.1	Discussion: Patriarchy, Technology, Globalization	105
3.7	The Impact of Disability on the Marital Relationship	106
	References	110
4	Shrinking Circles of Support: The Urban Family in Transition	113
4.1	Sibling Relations and Disability: Key Themes	114
4.1.1	‘Someone to Call One’s Own’: The Importance of Siblings in the Life of a Child with Disability	119
4.1.2	Making Sense of the Sibling’s Disability	121
4.1.3	The ‘Burden of Competence’	123
4.1.4	Supporting Siblings	125
4.2	The Experiences of Grandparents	128
4.2.1	Responses of Grandparents: An Overview	128
4.2.2	Findings from Fieldwork	129
4.3	Responses of the Extended Family: Support and Stigma	134
4.4	Family, Neighbourhood and Community	137
	References	140
5	Disability, Society and State: New Mobilizations and Movements	143
5.1	The Social World of Disability: Mobilizations in the Urban Space	144
5.2	Action for Autism: Case Study of an Organization	148
5.2.1	Mission Statements and Core Values	149
5.2.2	Diagnosis and Assessment	152
5.2.3	Education and Training	152

5.2.4	Training	154
5.2.5	Research and Advocacy	154
5.3	The Forum for Autism, Mumbai	156
5.4	Ummeed, Mumbai	157
5.5	The Autism Society of West Bengal, Kolkata	158
5.6	Disability Rights, Role of the State and Impact of Global Discourses	159
5.6.1	The PWD Act	162
5.6.2	The National Trust for Welfare of Persons with Autism, Cerebral Palsy, Mental Retardation and Multiple Disabilities Act (1999) (NTA)	163
5.6.3	UNCRPD and Disability Rights in India	165
5.6.4	Opportunities for Inclusion	167
5.6.5	Autistic Neurodiversity and Identity	168
	References	170
6	Conclusion: Looking Back, Looking Forward	173
	References	180

<http://www.springer.com/978-81-322-3605-4>

Autism and the Family in Urban India

Looking Back, Looking Forward

Vaidya, S.

2016, XI, 180 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-81-322-3605-4