

Contents

- 1 Introduction 1
 - 1.1 Background 1
 - 1.2 Research Issues 2
 - References 2
- 2 The Importance of Motivation in Online Learning 5
 - 2.1 Motivation and Online Education. 5
 - 2.2 Online Learning 6
 - 2.2.1 Definition. 6
 - 2.2.2 Learner Autonomy and Control in Online Learning 7
 - 2.2.3 Contemporary Theories of Learning. 8
 - 2.2.4 The Role of Interaction in Online Learning. 10
 - 2.3 Motivation to Learn in Online Environments. 12
 - 2.3.1 What is Motivation? 13
 - 2.3.2 Why is Motivation Important? 13
 - 2.3.3 Motivation, the Learning Environment and the Learner 14
 - 2.4 Self-determination Theory as a Framework for Studying
Online Motivation 20
 - 2.5 Summary 23
 - References 24
- 3 The Case Studies 33
 - 3.1 Background to the Study 33
 - 3.2 The Nature of Motivation 36
 - 3.2.1 Case Study 1 36
 - 3.2.2 Case Study 2 39
 - 3.2.3 Comparing the Cases 42

3.3	Influences on Motivation	43
3.3.1	Autonomy	43
3.3.2	Competence	59
3.3.3	Relationships	69
3.4	Summary	74
	References	74
4	What Do the Case Studies Tell Us About Motivation?	77
4.1	Introduction	77
4.2	The Nature of Motivation	78
4.2.1	Motivation Is Affected by Context.	78
4.2.2	Different Types of Motivation Co-Exist in a Complex Mix.	80
4.3	Supportive Motivational Influences	81
4.3.1	The Role of Teachers.	82
4.3.2	Learning Activities	86
4.3.3	Other Learners	91
4.4	Undermining Motivational Influences.	96
4.4.1	The Role of Teachers.	96
4.4.2	Learning Activities	98
4.4.3	Other Learners	105
4.5	Summary	108
	References	109
5	Motivation Guidelines for Teachers, Designers and Learners	115
5.1	What Teachers Can Do to Support the Motivation of Online Learners.	116
5.1.1	Autonomy Support	116
5.1.2	Competence Support	118
5.1.3	Relatedness Support.	119
5.2	What Designers Can Do to Help Support Learner Motivation	120
5.2.1	Autonomy Support	120
5.2.2	Competence Support	121
5.2.3	Relatedness Support.	122
5.3	Knowing What Helps—Motivation Guidelines When Working with Other Learners	123
5.3.1	Autonomy Support	123
5.3.2	Competence Support	124
5.3.3	Relatedness Support.	125
	References	126

- 6 Concluding Remarks 127
 - 6.1 Conclusions 127
 - 6.1.1 Motivation to Learn Online is Complex,
Multidimensional and Situation-Dependent 128
 - 6.1.2 Social and Contextual Factors Influence the Motivation
Experienced by Online Learners 129
 - 6.2 Future Directions 131
 - 6.3 Final Thoughts 132
 - References 133

<http://www.springer.com/978-981-10-0698-2>

Motivation in Online Education

Hartnett, M.

2016, XXIII, 134 p. 5 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-981-10-0698-2