

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	Gap of Existing Research and Research Questions	5
	Map of the Argument	7
	An Interdisciplinary Approach	9
2	Origins of Meritocracy in China	11
	Philosophical Origins of Chinese Meritocracy	12
	Meritocracy, Education and the Keju in Imperial China.	15
	The Development of Dynastic Education Provision in the Ming Dynasty.	20
	The Formation of Empire-Wide Civil Service Examination System	22
	The Keju and Social Mobility	25
	Classical Education, Cultural Capital and Contested Mobility?	27
	Sponsored Mobility: Surnames, Lineages and Intermarriage.	29
	Keju Quotas, Social Mobility and the State	32
	Conclusion	34
3	A Comparative Analysis of Western Meritocracies	35
	Introduction	35
	Theories of Meritocracy and Their Critiques	36
	The Role of Merit-Based Rewards in Structural Functionalist Theory	37
	Michael Young's Meritocratic Dystopia	38
	Empirical Research on Meritocracy and Social Mobility	40
	Professionalism and Meritocracy	42
	A Comparative Analysis of Western Meritocracies	45
	Presence or Absence of Contested Sponsorship at the Schooling Level	47
	France and Germany	48
	UK and the US: Presence of Contested Sponsorship.	49
	Japan: Presence of Shadow Education.	50

Presence or Absence of Homogenous Entrance Examinations and Selection Criteria	52
Presence or Absence of Private Contributions to Higher Education . . .	56
Conclusion	58
4 Education and Social Harmony During China's
Great Transformation	61
Introduction	61
Three Main Accounts for the Expansion of Higher Education
Since the 1990s	61
Modernisation Approach	62
Human Capital Account	65
Globalisation Account	68
Higher Education Selection and Political Changes Over the Course of the PRC	71
The Socialist Transformation: 1949–1957	72
The Socialist Construction: From 1958 to 1965	73
The Cultural Revolution (1966–1976)	73
The Fall of Political Affiliation-Based Selection and the Rise of Meritocratic Selection: 1978 to the Present	75
Great Transformation, Meritocracy and the Strategy of ‘Development and Stability’	77
The Great Transformation and the Widening Inequality	77
The Changes in the State-Economy Relationships and in the Social Structure During the Market Transition	78
The Widening Inequality	79
The Unstable Political Situation in the 1980s	81
Meritocracy and the Strategy of the ‘Development and Stability’ (发展与稳定)	83
Conclusion	84
5 The Gaokao as a Meritocratic Selection?	85
Empirical Work in China	86
Constructing Variables	90
The Gaokao	90
Types of Higher Education Institutions and Fields of Study	92
Higher Education Selection and Recruitment: The Three-Choice System	97
Cut-off Points and the Quota Policy	99
Dependent Variables: The Gaokao Scores	100
Types of Higher Education Institutions and Fields of Study	101
Conclusion	102

6	Meritocracy, Education Opportunities and Social Stratification	105
	Introduction	105
	Maximally Maintained Inequality (MMI) and Effectively Maintained Inequality (EMI) Theory	106
	The MMI and EMI Theory in the Chinese Context	109
	Conceptualising Social Origin in Contemporary China	111
	Hypotheses and Variables	113
	General Pattern of Higher Education Participation by Social Origin from the Survey Study	116
	Models, Results and Analyses	117
	Discussions	122
	Conclusions	124
7	Meritocracy and Cultural Capital	125
	Introduction	125
	Bourdieu's Cultural Capital Thesis	126
	Boudon's Positional Theory: Primary and Secondary Effects	129
	Extending Cultural Capital and Positional Theory to Contemporary China	132
	Hypotheses, Variables and Data	134
	General Pattern of Higher Education Participation in Relation to Cultural Capital from the Survey Study	135
	Models, Results and Analyses	138
	Discussion	144
	Conclusion	146
8	Meritocracy, Gender and the 'One-Child' Policy	149
	Introduction	149
	Gender and Education in the Developing Contexts	150
	Gender and Education in the Chinese Context	151
	The 'One-Child' Policy	152
	Expansion of Higher Education and Women's Participation	154
	A General Pattern of Higher Education Participation by Gender	156
	The Qualitative Data on the Gaokao Experiences	158
	After the Gaokao : Qualitative Participation in Higher Education by Gender	161
	Academic Commitments	162
	Political Engagement	165
	Social Commitments	168
	Conclusion	169
9	Meritocracy and Geographical Stratification	171
	Introduction	171
	Economic Development, Decentralisation Governance and the Rise of Regional Inequality	172

The Chinese Context: Geographical Inequality and Decentralisation in Higher Education	173
Geographical Distribution of Higher Education Opportunities, Decentralised Selection and the Recruitment Policy	175
Discussion on the National Evidence	180
Qualitative Data on the Geographical Inequality	182
Conclusion	187
10 Conclusions	189
The Confucian Meritocracy	190
Western Meritocracies	191
Meritocracy and Social Stratification	192
Meritocracy and Cultural Capital	193
Meritocracy and Gender	193
Meritocracy and Geographical Stratification	194
Meritocracy at the Crossroads	194
Bibliography	197

Higher Education, Meritocracy and Inequality in China

Liu, Y.

2016, XVI, 221 p. 10 illus., 9 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-981-10-1586-1