

Contents

|                                                                                                          |          |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----------|
| Aswan High Dam Resettlement of Egyptian Nubians. . . . .                                          | 1 |
| 1 Introduction . . . . .                                                                                 | 1        |
| 2 Egyptian Nubian Resettlement in the Context of GlobalDam-Induced Resettlement. . . . .             | 4        |
| 3 Egyptian Nubia Before the High Dam . . . . .                                                           | 7        |
| 4 Stage 1: Planning Resettlement (This Section Draws Heavilyon Fahim 1968 and El-Abd 1979) . . . . . | 14       |
| 4.1 Government Planning . . . . .                                                                        | 14       |
| 4.2 Nubian Reactions to Resettlement. . . . .                                                            | 18       |
| 5 Stage 2: Physical Removal, Multi-Dimensional Stressand Initial Adaptation. . . . .                 | 19       |
| 5.1 Introduction . . . . .                                                                               | 19       |
| 5.2 Physical Removal . . . . .                                                                           | 20       |
| 5.3 The Multidimensional Stress of Resettlement . . . . .                                                | 22       |
| 5.4 Kom Ombo Housing and Villages . . . . .                                                              | 23       |
| 5.5 Initial Coping with Adversity During Stage 2. . . . .                                                | 27       |
| 5.6 Government Reactions to Inadequate Implementation. . . . .                                           | 28       |
| 6 Stage 3: Economic and Community Development . . . . .                                                  | 29       |
| 6.1 Introduction . . . . .                                                                               | 29       |
| 6.2 1970s . . . . .                                                                                      | 29       |
| 6.3 1980s . . . . .                                                                                      | 31       |
| 7 Nubia Today—Stage 4: Handing Over and Incorporation . . . . .                                          | 35       |
| 7.1 Introduction . . . . .                                                                               | 35       |
| 7.2 Nubian Livelihood, Society and Culture in the Twenty-FirstCentury. . . . .                       | 35       |
| 7.3 The Situation in Kom Ombo. . . . .                                                                   | 37       |
| 7.4 Culture Change and Continuity. . . . .                                                               | 40       |
| 7.5 The Right to Return . . . . .                                                                        | 40       |
| 7.6 Nubian Efforts to Return to the Shores of Lake Nasser . . . . .                                      | 42       |
| 7.7 Kakkar . . . . .                                                                                     | 46       |

|     |                                                                                                                                                                 |           |
|-----|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 8   | Old Nubia and Lake Nasser Today . . . . .                                                                                                                       | 47        |
| 8.1 | Introduction . . . . .                                                                                                                                          | 47        |
| 8.2 | “New Land, New Life” Project March 2010. . . . .                                                                                                                | 47        |
| 8.3 | Adaption Fund: Proposal for Egypt, August 31, 2011 . . . . .                                                                                                    | 48        |
| 9   | Summary . . . . .                                                                                                                                               | 49        |
| 9.1 | The Egyptian Nubian Resettlement Process . . . . .                                                                                                              | 49        |
| 9.2 | Political Will and the Need for the Government to AddressCurrent Nubian Complaints . . . . .                                                                | 50        |
| 9.3 | Financing . . . . .                                                                                                                                             | 51        |
| 9.4 | Capacity . . . . .                                                                                                                                              | 51        |
| 9.5 | The Importance of Participation for Avoiding Mistakes,for Reducing Dependency, and for Decreasing the Lengthand Stress Associated with Stage 2. . . . . | 51        |
| 9.6 | Development Opportunities. . . . .                                                                                                                              | 52        |
|     | References . . . . .                                                                                                                                     | 53 |

Aswan High Dam Resettlement of Egyptian Nubians
Scudder, T.

2016, XVII, 55 p. 10 illus., 7 illus. in color., Softcover
ISBN: 978-981-10-1934-0