

Contents

1	Introduction to the Development of Basic Education in China	1
1.1	Introduction	1
1.1.1	Patterns of Growth in Participation in Basic Education	4
1.1.2	Policy Development for Nine Year Compulsory Education	8
1.1.3	Overview of Management and Financing of Education	10
1.1.4	The Case Studies and Research Methods	15
1.1.5	Observations from 1990	20
	References	23
2	Compulsory Education in a Rich District Tongzhou in Beijing	25
2.1	Social and Economic Background	25
2.2	Change and Transformation in Xiji and Dadushe	28
2.3	The Evolution of Compulsory Education in Tongzhou, Xiji and Majuqiao	29
2.4	Teachers and Teacher Deployment	34
2.5	Educational Funding and Infrastructure	38
2.6	Migrant Children	40
2.7	Concluding Comments	41
3	Nine Year Compulsory Education in a Poor District Ansai in Yan'an, Shannxi	45
3.1	Social and Economic Background	45
3.2	Change and Transformation in Huaziping and Yanhewan	47
3.3	The Evolution of Nine Year Compulsory Education	48
3.4	Teachers and Teacher Development	55
3.5	Educational Funding and Infrastructure	58
3.6	The Development of Boarding Schools	60
3.7	Concluding Comments	63
4	Nine Year Compulsory Education in a National Minority Area Zhaojue County, Yi Autonomous Prefecture, Sichuan	67
4.1	Social and Economic Background	67

4.2	Change and Transformation in Zhaojue in Bier and Sikai	69
4.3	The Evolution of Nine Year Compulsory Education in Zhaojue in Bier and Sikai	70
4.4	Teachers and Teacher Deployment	78
4.5	Educational Funding and Infrastructure	80
4.6	The Development of Boarding Schools.	81
4.7	Concluding Comments	82
4.8	Post Script to Cast Studies.	86
	References	87
5	Rural Teacher Issues	89
5.1	Introduction	89
5.2	Context of the Research.	90
5.3	Public and Substitute Teachers in Rural Schools.	91
5.3.1	Significant Decrease in Proportion of Substitute Teachers. . .	93
5.3.2	Salaries of Substitute Teachers.	95
5.4	Quality of Rural Teachers	97
5.4.1	Improvement of Rural Teachers' Salaries.	98
5.4.2	Discrepancies in Salaries Between Poorer and Developed Areas	100
5.4.3	Differences in Teachers Incomes Between Urban and Rural Areas	101
5.4.4	Changes from Structured Salary to Performance-Related Salaries	102
5.5	Mobility and Stability of Rural Teachers.	103
5.5.1	Relative Stable Teaching Force	104
5.5.2	Drain of Better Teachers and Lack of Two-Way Mobility Mechanism	105
5.6	Efficiency and Use of Human Resources	106
5.6.1	Student-Teacher Ratio and Optimizing Human Resource . . .	107
5.6.2	The Teachers' Workload	108
5.6.3	The Proportion of Teaching Staff and Non-teaching Staff. . .	109
5.6.4	Match Between Teaching Subject and Education Background.	109
5.6.5	Teacher's Professional Development	109
5.7	Conclusions and Policy Suggestions	110
5.7.1	Establishing Mechanisms to Attract Better Teachers to Rural Schools	110
5.7.2	Giving Formal Status to Some Dedicated and Qualified Substitute Teachers.	111
5.7.3	Establishing Two-Way Mobility Mechanism for Teachers. . .	111
5.7.4	Enhancing the Effectiveness of Deployment of Teachers in Rural Schools	112
	References	112

6	Financing Compulsory Education in Rural Areas:
	The Development of a Sustainable Fund Guarantee System.	115
6.1	Introduction	115
6.2	Reform of Management and Fund Guarantee System.	117
6.2.1	The Planned Economy Centralized System (1949–85)	118
6.2.2	“Local Responsibility, Multi-level Management” (1985–2000)	120
6.2.3	The “County Centered Management System” 2001–2005. . .	124
6.2.4	The “New Mechanism” After 2005	126
6.3	The Impact of the Reform of Management and Fund Guarantee System	130
6.3.1	Progress in Developing a Durable Public Financial Guarantee for Rural Education.	130
6.3.2	Rapid Development in Western Areas	130
6.3.3	Increases in Total Educational Investment	131
6.3.4	Improved School Quality and Better Teaching Conditions. . .	132
6.3.5	Enhanced Student Financial Assistance	132
6.4	Remaining Challenges.	132
6.4.1	Regional Disparities	133
6.4.2	Institutional Issues	133
6.4.3	Teachers Salaries	134
6.4.4	Unclear Accountability, Crowding Out and Fund Adequacy	134
6.5	Conclusions	135
6.5.1	Better Relationships Between Central and Local Government	135
6.5.2	Increase Subsidy and Investment Levels in Poor Counties. . .	136
6.5.3	Improve the Methods of Supervision, Accountability and Evaluation	136
6.5.4	Improve Teachers’ Salary and Welfare and Regularize Substitute Teachers.	137
6.5.5	Regional Disparities and Strategic Planning	137
	References	138
7	Marginalised Children and Universal Basic Education.	141
7.1	Introduction	141
7.2	Migrant Children in Urban Areas	143
7.2.1	The Flow of Migrants.	144
7.2.2	The Impact of Inward Migration	147
7.3	Left-Behind Children.	149
7.3.1	Problems of Left Behind Children	150
7.4	Educational Participation and Gender Equity	150
7.4.1	Key Issues for Girl’s Education	151

7.5	HIV/AIDS Orphans and Education	153
7.5.1	Risks and Support Systems	153
7.5.2	Issues for HIV/AIDS Orphans	155
7.6	National Minority Children in Remote and Backward Areas	156
7.6.1	Lags in Educational Development	156
7.6.2	Equity and National Minorities	157
7.7	Conclusions and Policy Insights	158
7.7.1	Migrant Children	159
7.7.2	Left-Behind Children	160
7.7.3	Girls in Remote and Poor Areas	160
7.7.4	HIV/AIDS Orphans	161
7.7.5	Ethnic Minority Children in Backward and Remote Areas	162
	References	162
8	School Mapping and Boarding in the Context of Demographic
	Change in Rural Areas	165
8.1	Introduction	165
8.2	Context.	167
8.3	Demographic Changes and Falling Numbers
	of School-Age Children	169
8.3.1	Demographic and Change and School Enrolment
	in Tongzhou District, Beijing	170
8.3.2	Demographic Change and School Enrolment
	in Ansai County, Shanxi Province	172
8.3.3	Demographic Change and School Enrolment in Zhaojue,
	Sichuan Province	174
8.4	School Location Layout in Rural Areas: Policy and the Merger
	Process	174
8.4.1	One Village One School Stage	174
8.4.2	School Location Adjustment Since 1990s	175
8.5	Development of Boarding Schools and Related Issues	181
8.5.1	Boarding Schools in Ansai County, Shanxi Province	181
8.5.2	Boarding School in Zhaojue County, Sichuan Province	182
8.6	Achievements and Problems of School Mapping Development	184
8.6.1	Achievements and Advantages	185
8.6.2	Issues and Disadvantages Emerged	186
8.7	Conclusions and Recommendations	188
8.7.1	Shifts of Policy	188
8.7.2	Ways Forward	189
	References	190
9	Transitions and Challenges for the Development
	of Basic Education	193
9.1	Tongzhou, Ansai and Zhaojue Revisited	193
9.2	Ten Issues for Nine Year Compulsory Education	195
9.2.1	Early Childhood Care and Health and Nutrition	195

9.2.2	Age of Entry, Preschool, and Over Age Progression	196
9.2.3	Teachers	196
9.2.4	Out of School Children.	197
9.2.5	Boarding and Small Schools	197
9.2.6	The Education of Migrants, Girls and Orphans	198
9.2.7	Management and Finance.	199
9.2.8	Buildings and Infrastructure	200
9.2.9	Assessment and Monitoring and Planning	200
9.2.10	Equity and Distribution	201
9.3	Growing Needs to Address Inequalities.	202
9.3.1	Disparities Between Regions	202
9.3.2	Disparities Between Regions	203
9.3.3	Disparities Between Schools	203
9.3.4	Disparities Between Social Groups	204
9.3.5	Other Inequalities	204
	References	205

Two Decades of Basic Education in Rural China
Transitions and Challenges for Development

Wang, L.; Lewin, K.

2016, XXVII, 205 p. 38 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-981-10-2118-3