Contents

1 Introduction 1
Yuan-shan Chen, Der-Hwa Victoria Rau and Gerald Rau

Part I Emails from Students to Professors

2 Negotiating Personal Relationship Through Email Terms of Address. 11
Der-Hwa Victoria Rau and Gerald Rau

3 Discourse Organization and Features of Email Writing Among EFL Students in Taiwan 37
Li-Jung Huang

4 Do Chinese Students Waffle in Their Apologies?: An Exploration into EFL Learners' Emails 61
Miao-Hsia Chang, Jean Curran, Yueh-Kuei Hsu and Chih-Chun Hsu

5 Politeness and Effectiveness of English Email Requests: Taiwanese Professors' Perspectives. 91
Wan-jing Li and Yuan-shan Chen

Part II Emails from Students to the International Academic Community

6 Emailing Requests to International Researchers: The Construction of Identity by Chinese EFL Graduate Students. 115
Xinren Chen

7 Intercultural Taoci Email: New Wine in an Old Bottle 135
Lin Xiao and Yihong Gao

8 Strategies Used in Chinese University Students' ELF Emails to Remedy or Prevent Problems in Understanding 163
Wei Ren

Part III Emails from Peer to Peer

9 Openings and Closings in Intercultural Email Communication: A Case Study of Taiwanese, Japanese, and Italian Students 185
Hsin-chou Huang

10 Apologies in Emails: Interactions Between Chinese EFL Learners and Their Foreign Peers 205
Jianda Liu and Wei Ren

Part IV Emails in the Workplace

11 Status-Congruence in Request E-Mail Discourse of Professional Secretaries in a University of Taiwan 231
Pi-Hsia Lü

12 A Study on Symbolic Competence and Face in ELF Email Communication 263
Hsuan-Yu Tai

13 Top Secret: Hacking and Fraud Detection in Business Emails of a Taiwanese Company 285
Tzu-Wei Hsiang

http://www.springer.com/978-981-287-887-8

Email Discourse Among Chinese Using English as a Lingua Franca

Chen, Y.-s.; Rau, D.-H.V.; Rau, G. (Eds.)
2016, X, 296 p., Hardcover
ISBN: 978-981-287-887-8