

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Problem Statement	2
1.2	Main Hypotheses and Deduction of Key Research Questions	4
1.3	Research Outline	6
	References	7
2	Theoretical Background and Research Approach	9
2.1	Urban Concepts of Collective Memory, Identity and Place Attachment	10
2.2	The Potential of Urban Heritage in Identity Formation	16
2.3	Previous Research on Urban Identities in Different Cultural Contexts	20
2.4	Conceptual and Theoretical Embedding of the Research Topic	26
2.5	Own Analytical Model	31
2.6	Methodology	33
2.7	Selected Case Study Areas	37
2.8	Research Constraints	39
	References	41
3	Heritage and Conservation in Changing Environments	53
3.1	Roots of Cultural Heritage Conservation	54
3.2	The Emergence of UNESCO and International Cultural Heritage Policies	59
3.3	Discourses on the Representativeness and Euro-Centricity of the World Heritage List	64
3.4	Consideration of Intangible and Immaterial Heritage	68
3.5	Tangible and Intangible World Heritage Sites in Brazil, Indonesia and Nepal	70

3.6	Current and Future Challenges of Cultural Heritage Conservation.	72
3.7	Cultural Heritage Conservation on National and Regional Levels.	76
3.8	Urban Heritage.	85
3.9	Challenges of Urban Heritage in Emerging and Developing Countries.	90
3.10	Chapter Summary.	95
	References.	96
4	Urban Regeneration	103
4.1	Key Moments and Focal Points of Urban Regeneration	105
4.2	Urban Regeneration and Related Policies in Different World Regions	114
4.3	The Role of Urban Heritage in Regeneration and Sustainable Urban Planning	122
4.4	Chapter Summary.	126
	References.	126
5	Heritage and Identities in Selected Urban Centres	135
5.1	Case Study I: Kathmandu, Nepal	137
5.1.1	A Brief Country and Planning History of Nepal	138
5.1.2	Introduction to Kathmandu	140
5.1.3	The 'Historic Urban Landscape' of Kathmandu	144
5.1.4	Inner-City Patterns and Dynamics	149
5.1.5	Perceived Drivers of Change in the Urban Landscape.	157
5.1.6	Assessment of Urban and Heritage Policies.	164
5.1.7	Phases of Urban Renewal in Kathmandu.	171
5.1.8	Perception of Inner-City Processes	174
5.1.9	Importance of Tangible and Intangible Assets.	179
5.1.10	Conclusions on the Role of Heritage in Shaping the Urban Identity of Kathmandu	185
5.2	Case Study II: Yogyakarta, Indonesia.	188
5.2.1	A Brief Country and Planning History of Indonesia	190
5.2.2	Introduction to Yogyakarta	192
5.2.3	The 'Historic Urban Landscape' of Yogyakarta	196
5.2.4	Inner City Patterns and Dynamics	200
5.2.5	Perceived Drivers of Change in the Urban Landscape.	207
5.2.6	Assessment of Urban and Heritage Policies.	213
5.2.7	Phases of Urban Renewal in Yogyakarta.	218
5.2.8	Perception of Inner-City Processes	222

5.2.9	Importance of Tangible and Intangible Assets	226
5.2.10	Conclusions on the Role of Heritage in Shaping the Urban Identity of Yogyakarta	233
5.3	Case Study III: Recife, Brazil	235
5.3.1	A Brief Country and Planning History of Brazil	237
5.3.2	Introduction to Recife	239
5.3.3	The ‘Historic Urban Landscape’ of Recife	244
5.3.4	Inner City Patterns and Dynamics	247
5.3.5	Perceived Drivers of Change in the Urban Landscape	254
5.3.6	Assessment of Urban and Heritage Policies	260
5.3.7	Phases of Urban Renewal in Recife	267
5.3.8	Perception of Inner-City Processes	271
5.3.9	Importance of Tangible and Intangible Assets	275
5.3.10	Conclusions on the Role of Heritage in Shaping the Urban Identity of Recife	282
5.4	Comparative Analysis of the Case Studies’ Findings	284
5.4.1	Urban Patterns and Processes Impacting on the Historic Centres	284
5.4.2	Findings on Laws and Policies	289
5.4.3	Findings on Urban Regeneration	292
5.4.4	Findings on Urban Identity and Place Attachment	296
5.4.5	Conclusions on Case Studies	305
	References	306
6	Discussion and Conclusions	319
6.1	Suitability of Global Heritage Reference Frames on Local Scales	320
6.2	Heritage Is not the Same as Heritage	322
6.3	Global Paradigms Against Local Realities	324
6.4	Directions for Future Research	326
	References	328
7	‘Our Town’!—Final Considerations	331
8	Postscript	335
	References	340
	Appendix A: International Heritage Documents and Charters	343
	Appendix B: List of Interview Partners	351
	Appendix C: Questionnaire	353

Appendix D: Expert Interview Guideline and Coding System. 363

Appendix E: Questionnaire Statistical Review 365

Glossary. 373

References 375

Index 377

Urban Centres in Asia and Latin America
Heritage and Identities in Changing Urban Landscapes
Sandholz, S.
2017, XXIV, 379 p. 73 illus. in color., Hardcover
ISBN: 978-3-319-43734-7