

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Study Community	4
1.2	Methodology	5
1.3	Organization of the Text	6
2	Continuity and Change: From the Boom to the Slowing Down of International Migration from Mexico to the U.S.	7
2.1	Explaining the Continuity and Change of International Migration	7
2.2	Economic Crisis and New Perspectives on Migratory Policy	10
2.3	From High Tide to Reflux: Transition to a New Phase?	13
2.3.1	Slowing Down of Migratory Flows Toward the U.S.	14
2.3.2	Return Migration	17
2.3.3	Monetary Remittances: From Continuous Growth to a Slow Down	24
2.3.4	Redefining the Index of Migratory Intensity	26
2.3.5	Apprehensions at the Border and Deportations from the U.S.	29
2.3.6	Mexican Migrants in the U.S.	30
3	Changes and Continuities in the International Migratory Dynamics of Las Vueltas: Transition Toward a New Migratory Phase?	31
3.1	Stages of Mexico-U.S. Migration	31
3.2	Dynamics of Vuelteños ' Migrations Toward the United States	34
3.2.1	Flow of Emigrants	34
3.2.2	Detentions at the Border	38
3.2.3	Migratory Decisions in a Context of Crisis in the Recipient Society	41
3.2.4	Return Migration	43

3.3	The Impact of Reduction in the Volume of Family Remittances	47
3.3.1	Family Remittances in the Household Economy	48
3.3.2	The Heterogeneous Impacts of Reduced Remittances	50
3.3.3	Some Examples of Heterogeneity	53
3.4	Situations of Vulnerability Among Vuelteños in the U.S. Economy and Unemployment.	57
3.4.1	The García Family	59
3.4.2	Polo and His Family	60
3.4.3	Rosa and Her Children	61
3.4.4	Soledad	62
3.5	Vulnerability and the Anti-immigrant Movement	63
3.5.1	Despite Everything They Stay in the U.S.	66
3.6	Final Comments	67
4	Transformation Processes in International Migration as a Strategy of Family Life and Community Organization.	71
4.1	Notions on the Strategies of Family Life	71
4.2	Local Subsistence Pattern and Regional Economic Insertion	74
4.3	International Migration as a Strategy of Family Life: Symptoms of Change or Weakening?	77
4.3.1	The López Family	78
4.3.2	The Beltrán Family	79
4.4	The Migrants of Crisis: How You Suffer When There's Nothing to Give the Kids.	82
4.5	Family Strategies and Diversification for Survival: From Escape Valve to Overflowing the Local Labor Market	84
4.6	What Are Vuelteños's Life Strategies?	86
4.6.1	The Local Labor Market	88
4.6.2	Other National Work Markets	91
4.6.3	Underselling Harvests	92
4.6.4	Internal Resources	94
4.6.5	Raising and Selling Animals	95
4.6.6	Limiting Expenses	95
4.6.7	Help from Relatives	96
4.6.8	Other Strategies	97
4.7	Community Dynamics and Celebrations	100
4.7.1	Family Festivities	100
4.7.2	Implications for the Internal Economy: The Functioning of Small-Scale Commerce	102
4.7.3	The Functioning of Social Networks	104
4.8	Final Comments	105
5	Conclusions	107

Bibliography 113

The Autonomous University of the State of Mexico (UAEMex) 119

About the Author 121

About this Book 123

International Migration and Crisis

Transition Toward a New Migratory Phase

Jardón Hernández, A.E.

2017, IX, 123 p. 23 illus., 8 illus. in color., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-43897-9