

Contents

1	New Perspectives on Ecological Networks	1
1.1	The Impact of Urbanization Processes on the Consumption of the Soil and on the Fragmentation	1
1.2	From Protected Natural Areas to Reticular System	7
1.3	The Paradigm of the Ecological Networks	12
1.4	European Policies About Ecological Networks	16
	References	24
2	Ecological Networks and Planning	29
2.1	The Issue of Regulation	29
2.2	The Re-processing of Values: New Types of Planning?	33
2.3	Ecological Networks in Planning Instruments	36
2.4	The Case of Italy	42
2.5	The Italian Census of Local Scale Planning Instruments According to the Ecological Network Model	46
	References	51
3	Ecological Network, Application of a Model in Sicily	55
3.1	Soil Consumption and Fragmentation of the Regional Natural System	55
3.2	Urban-Planning Versus Environment-Planning	61
3.3	A Reticular System for the Protected Areas	67
3.4	The Application of the Ecological Network in Wide-Area Planning in Sicily: The Case of the Metropolitan City of Palermo and of the Libero Consorzio Di Siracusa	71
	References	78
	Conclusions	83
	References	87

Connected Lands

New Perspectives on Ecological Networks Planning

Schilleci, F.; Todaro, V.; Lotta, F.

2017, X, 87 p. 13 illus., 12 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-55232-3