

Contents

1	Introduction	1
	The Need for Criminological Knowledge	1
	Translational Research: What It Is and Why It Is Important	2
	Translational Research in Criminology	4
	Thoughts on Defining Translational Criminology
	and Translational Criminologists	7
	The Bridging Role of the States in Translational Criminology	9
2	An Overview of State-Level Criminal Justice	11
	Executive-Level Agencies	11
	State Administering Agencies (SAAs)	12
	Statistical Analysis Centers (SACs)	13
	Other Executive State Agencies Interfacing with Crime
	and Justice	15
	State Legislatures	17
	State Supreme Courts	18
	Statewide Organizations	19
	Funding for Criminal Justice	20
	Federal Funding	21
	Other Federal Agencies Funding Crime and Justice	22
	State Funding	23
	Private Funding	23
	Conclusions	23
3	Impediments To Translation in the States	25
	The Incentive Structure of State Government	25
	How State Agencies Acquire Criminological Information	25
	The Incentive Structure of Academe	27
	Basic Versus Applied Research in the Social Sciences	28

Impediments to Mutual Engagement	30
Politics as an Impediment to Successful Translation	32
Conclusions	32
4 Real Examples of Translation	35
“Nothing Works” as a Failure in Translation	35
The Consequences of Sentencing Reform	36
OJJDP Initiatives	37
Disproportionate Minority Contact	38
Gender-Specific Services	39
Offender Reentry	39
Conclusions	40
5 Hypothetical Examples of Translation	43
Hypothetical Example #1: Crime Prevention Through Head Injury Prevention	43
Hypothetical Example #2: Reducing Entitlement, Exploitativeness and Aggression	45
Hypothetical Example #3: Suicide Prevention Through Court-Based Referral	46
Conclusions	47
6 Conclusions and Recommendations	49
Conclusions About the State’s Role in Translational Criminology	49
Recommendations	50
State Agencies Should Take a Proactive Stance Toward Translational Criminology	50
State Agencies That Award Grants Should Institutionalize Translation Into Their Funding Processes	51
State Criminologists Should Acquaint Themselves With the Literature of Translation	51
State Criminologists Should Embrace a Variety of Analytical Tools to Facilitate Translation	53
State Criminologists Should Consider the Collateral Consequences of Their Recommendations	53
Statewide Non-profit Organizations Related to Criminal Justice Should Support Translational Criminology	54
States Should Consider the Land-grant University Extension Model to Facilitate Translational Criminology	55
References	57
Index	63

The Role of State Agencies in Translational Criminology
Connecting Research to Policy

Davis, M.S.

2017, XIII, 63 p. 4 illus., 3 illus. in color., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-57680-0