

CONTENTS

1	The Ethical System of Watsuji Tetsurô	1
1.1	Two Preparatory Works (1934, 1935)	2
1.1.1	Dualities in Milieu	3
1.1.2	Ethics as the Study of Ningen (1934)	5
1.1.3	Etymologies	6
1.1.4	The History of Western Ethics	7
1.1.5	Methodology	8
1.2	Ethics I (1937)	10
1.2.1	Practical Interconnections Through Acts	11
1.2.2	The Negative Dual-Structure and Ethics of Emptiness	11
1.2.3	Space and Time	13
1.2.4	Trust and Truthfulness	14
1.3	Ethics II (1942, 1946)	15
1.3.1	The Dialectic of Private and Public Existence	15
1.3.2	The Family	17
1.3.3	The Local Community	18
1.3.4	The Economic System	19
1.3.5	Cultural Community	20
1.3.6	The State	22
1.4	Ethics III (1949)	24
1.4.1	Historicity	25
1.4.2	The Ideals of History	26
1.4.3	Milieu	28

1.4.4	National Existence	29
1.4.5	National Imperatives	30
1.5	The Crux of Rinrigaku	32
	References	37
2	Relationality vs. Singularity: Between Care Ethics and Poststructuralism	39
2.1	Relational Existence	40
2.2	Watsuji and the Ethics of Care	44
2.2.1	McCarthy's Watsuji-ron	44
2.2.2	Further Contributions and Critiques	47
2.3	The Excesses of Aidagara	50
2.3.1	Husband and Wife	52
2.3.2	Language	54
2.3.3	Being-Toward-Death Between Heidegger and Watsuji	54
2.4	Hints from Poststructuralism	57
2.4.1	Emmanuel Levinas	58
2.4.2	Jean-Luc Nancy	60
2.5	Rethinking Watsuji and the Passion of Aidagara	65
2.5.1	Returning to and from Emptiness	66
2.5.2	Cultural Products and Production	67
2.5.3	The Prophet	68
2.6	Conclusion	69
	References	74
3	Individuality vs. Community: Confronting the Liberal-Communitarian Debates	77
3.1	Individuality and Totality in Prewar Ethics	78
3.1.1	Emptying Individuality and Totality	79
3.1.2	The Movement of Negation	81
3.1.3	The Functioning of Individuality and Totality	84
3.2	The Wartime Story	87
3.2.1	Focusing on Finite Totalities	88
3.2.2	Dialectics as a Spiral Ascent	90
3.2.3	The Mechanism of Cultural Change	92

3.2.4	The Citizen and the State	94
3.2.5	Between 1942 and 1946: A State at War	97
3.3	Postwar Reflections	101
3.3.1	Reinterpreting the Movement of Double-Negation	101
3.3.2	The Individual and Historical Progress	103
3.3.3	National Morality	104
3.4	The Changing Historical Circumstances of Ethics	106
3.4.1	Growing Pressures in Prewar Japan	107
3.4.2	Wartime Madness	109
3.4.3	Philosophizing in the Aftermath	112
3.5	The Liberal-Communitarian Debates	113
3.5.1	Rawls' A Theory of Justice	113
3.5.2	Communitarian Critiques of the Theory of Justice	115
3.5.3	Rawls' Response	116
3.5.4	Watsuji Between Liberalism and Communitarianism	118
3.6	Conclusion	121
	References	127
4	Universality vs. Particularity: Local Ethics in a Global World	129
4.1	Situating Ethics in Space and Time	130
4.2	Specifying History, Climate, and National Existence	135
4.2.1	Historicity	135
4.2.2	Milieuity and National Existence	139
4.3	Universal Morality and National Morals	140
4.3.1	A Critique of National Morals	141
4.3.2	A Critique of Universal Morality	144
4.3.3	A Watsujian Synthesis of the Universal and Particular	148
4.4	World History	150
4.4.1	The Dynamics of Culture	151
4.4.2	From Culture to Humankind	152
4.5	Realizing Global Ethics	154
4.5.1	Intra-National Imperative	154
4.5.2	International Imperative	155

4.6	Moral Universalism vs. Particularism Today	158
4.6.1	The Recovery of Cultural Difference	158
4.6.2	Two Attempts to Reconcile Universalism and Particularism	160
4.6.3	Watsuji's Approach	164
4.7	Emptiness as a Universal	166
4.8	Conclusion	170
	References	174
5	Ethics of Emptiness: The Road from Buddhism to Aidagara	175
5.1	Retracing Watsuji's Buddhism	176
5.1.1	No-Self	177
5.1.2	Dependent Arising	178
5.1.3	Buddhist Ethics and Is-Ought	183
5.2	From Buddhist Ethics to the Ethics of Aidagara	184
5.2.1	Emptying and Negation	185
5.2.2	Hegelian Buddhism	187
5.2.3	Discontinuities Between Buddhist Ethics and Interpersonal Ethics	188
5.2.4	Not an Either-Or	193
5.3	Combining Buddhism and Interpersonal Ethics	196
5.3.1	Critical Moments in Hermeneutics	196
5.3.2	Secret Ideals in Hermeneutics	198
5.3.3	The Ideal of Spiritual Community	199
5.3.4	A Prototype of Communal Enlightenment: Renga	202
5.4	Beyond Watsuji: Interpersonal Buddhist Ethics	204
5.4.1	Different Approaches to Emptiness	204
5.4.2	Dharmatheorie and Ningentheorie	206
5.4.3	Trust and Truthfulness	209
5.5	Toward a Contemporary Social Ethics Post-self	211
5.5.1	Buddhist Social Ethics	212
5.5.2	Dharmic Materialism	216
5.6	Conclusion	221
	References	225

General Conclusion	227
Glossary of Key Translations	239
References	241
Index	253

Watsuji Tetsurô's Global Ethics of Emptiness
A Contemporary Look at a Modern Japanese
Philosopher

Sevilla, A.L.

2017, XXXIII, 258 p. 8 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-58352-5