

The order of authors given on the title page does therefore not indicate lead authorship or intellectual priority but is purely alphabetical. Yet, the content analysis of the manuscripts (in Appendix A), which provides the basis for much of the book, was done by myself only.

Our acknowledgments go to Sandra Zawrel for her help in editing a first draft of the ‘catalogus rariorum manuscriptorum’; Olaf Simons for his expert advice on German script; Marco Pasi for his helpful suggestions on some Italian formulations; Asaph Ben-Tov for his feedback on some of the Hebrew elements; Thomas Fuchs for his friendly remarks on the history of the collection; Carlos Gilly for his precious advice and unpublished material on early modern book collections of ‘learned magic’; Linda Finnigan for her thorough proofreading of the entire manuscript; and Brigitte Pfeil, Marco Frenschkowski, Michael Siefener, and Peter Forshaw for their helpful remarks; as well as numerous other colleagues who read previous drafts of this book or posed nagging questions during public lectures or colloquia. We would also like to thank the Max Weber Centre (Erfurt University) and the Institute for the Study of the Book (Erlangen-Nuremberg University) for providing decent research infrastructure and funding, and our contacts at Palgrave MacMillan, foremost Camille Davies, for the speedy and uncomplicated publishing procedure.
