

Contents

Introduction: Innovative Spaces for Mathematics Education with Technology	1
Francesca Ferrara, Eleonora Faggiano and Antonella Montone
Part I Opening Scenery
From Acorns to Oak Trees: Charting Innovation Within Technology in Mathematics Education	9
Susana Carreira, Alison Clark-Wilson, Eleonora Faggiano and Antonella Montone
Part II New Spaces for Research
Returning to Ordinality in Early Number Sense: Neurological, Technological and Pedagogical Considerations	39
Nathalie Sinclair and Alf Coles
The Coordinated Movements of a Learning Assemblage: Secondary School Students Exploring Wii Graphing Technology	59
Elizabeth de Freitas, Francesca Ferrara and Giulia Ferrari
Using Digital Environments to Address Students' Mathematical Learning Difficulties	77
Elisabetta Robotti and Anna Baccaglini-Frank
Part III New Technological Spaces
Innovative Uses of Digital Technology in Undergraduate Mathematics	109
Mike O. J. Thomas, Ye Yoon Hong and Greg Oates

The Duo “Pascaline and e-Pascaline”: An Example of Using Material and Digital Artefacts at Primary School	137
Michela Maschietto and Sophie Soury-Lavergne
What Is Or What Might Be the Benefit of Using Computer Algebra Systems in the Learning and Teaching of Calculus?	161
Hans-Georg Weigand
 Part IV New Spaces for Teachers
Innovations Through Institutionalized Infrastructures: The Case of Dimitris, His Students and Constructionist Mathematics.	197
Chronis Kynigos
Studying the Practice of High School Mathematics Teachers in a Single Computer Setting.	215
Michal Tabach and Galit Slutzky
 Part V Closing Scenery
Digital Mazes and Spatial Reasoning: Using Colour and Movement to Explore the 4th Dimension.	237
Elizabeth de Freitas
Erratum to: Introduction: Innovative Spaces for Mathematics Education with Technology	E1
Francesca Ferrara, Eleonora Faggiano and Antonella Montone

Innovation and Technology Enhancing Mathematics
Education

Perspectives in the Digital Era

Faggiano, E.; Ferrara, F.; Montone, A. (Eds.)

2017, X, 257 p. 86 illus., 4 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-61487-8