

CONTENTS

1	Rephrasing the Feitiço: A New Episteme for Perverse Characters	1
1	On a Jamie, a Julie and a Jame	1
2	Towards a Paradigm for 'Involving and Disturbing'	4
3	Filmic Design for Transgressive Characters	7
3.1	Epistemic Limitations on Writing Character Complexity	9
3.2	An Alternative Epistemic Paradigm for Characters	10
4	Towards an Alternative Episteme for Transgressive 'Pervert' Characters	12
Part I	Myth: From the Absent, Invisible 'Pervert' to the 'Is-ness' of the Feiticeiro/a
2	Psychoanalytic Absence: Freudian Object-Focus and the Resultant 'Pervert Sans-Corpus'	25
1	The 'Pervert' in Popular Conception	25
2	The 'Now You See Him, Now You Don't' Pervert	28
3	Agency, or Lack Thereof	32

3.1	Ego-Splitting, Disavowal and Fetishism	33
3.2	Fetishism, Defence and Repression	35
4	Beyond Absence	37
3	Absenting Heteropatriarchal Discourses: The Invisible ‘Pervert’	45
1	The Socially Absent ‘Pervert’	45
2	Normative Invisibility	47
2.1	Heteropatriarchal Assumptions	48
2.2	Over-Valuation and the Substitution of the Object for ‘Reality’	50
3	Re-Assessing Over-Valuation	52
4	Beyond Invisibility	56
4	Anthropologically Present ‘Perverts’: Re-instating the Feitiço as the Feiticeiro/a	65
1	From Sexological ‘Fetish’ Back to Anthropological Feitiço	65
2	Etymologically Dialectical Constructs of ‘the Fetishist’	67
3	The ‘In-Between’ Feitiço	71
3.1	The Presence of ‘the Fetishist’ Through Cross-Cultural Encounter	72
3.2	Reification Discourses Reflecting ‘Is-ness’	74
4	Presence in the ‘Feitiço’ as the Feiticeiro/a	76
Part II	Connotation: The Philosophical Constitution of the Feiticeiro/a
5	Towards an Episteme for the Feiticeiro/a: Realism in Character Construction	85
1	An Episteme for ‘Perverts’	85
2	Beyond Absenting and Essentialist Constructions	87
2.1	Complex Characters	89
2.2	A Character Episteme Based on ‘Real-World’ People	90
3	Rephrasing Epistemologies for Connoted ‘Is-ness’	91
4	Towards an Episteme to Reflect ‘Is-ness’	95

6	The Feiticeiro/a and the Categorical ‘Fetishist’: Sexuality Prescribed Through Psychiatric Classifications	103
1	‘Foot and Shoe Fetishists Welcome’	103
2	The ICD Codes: Not Quite Useful for Character Design	105
3	Psychiatric Definitions: The Vestigial Tails of Freudian Categories	110
3.1	Tarring People with the Same Brush Through ‘Isms’	112
3.2	The Categorical Foundationalising of Fetish Practices	114
4	The Underlying Categorical Normativity	115
7	The Internally Coherent Feiticeiro/a: A Structure not a Substance	123
1	Rephrasing the Subject-Self for Character Identity	123
2	The ‘Pervert’ Subject as Structure, not Substance	125
3	Discursive Fictional Embodiments	128
3.1	There Is No Body	130
3.2	However, There Is Embodiment	131
4	The Embodied ‘Pervert’—a Structure not a Substance	134

Part III Denotation: The Form of the Feiticeiro/a

8	The Feiticeiro/a as a Materially Identifiable Character: Subjectively Conceived Filmic Participants	145
1	Character Form	145
2	A ‘Realist’ Paradigm—Semiotic Translation to Active Audiences	148
3	‘Realist’ Characterisation—Embodied, Accessible Characters	152
3.1	Consciousness of Experience and Experience of Consciousness	154
3.2	Appearance versus ‘Reality’ in (Fictional) Bodies	156
4	Subjective Experience	158

9	Writing ‘Perverse’ Behaviour for the Feiticeiro/a: Revisioning the ICD Diagnostic Criteria	165
1	Non-Aristotelian Action	165
2	The Diagnostic Criteria as an Episteme for Action?	167
3	Moral and Statistical Normativity in Diagnosis	171
3.1	Historically Invisible Moralising	172
3.2	Implicit Discursive and Statistical (Hetero) Normativity	173
4	Phenomenological Complexity	176
10	Rephrasing Character Action for the Feiticeiro/a: External Coherence Through Transactional Relations	185
1	Relationality Rather Than Activity-as-Substance	185
2	The Relational Subject: External Coherence Through Transactional Engagement	187
2.1	Relationality and the Problem of Anonymity	190
2.2	Relationality: Transactional Models of Dynamic, Permeable Co-constitution	192
3	Actions and Behaviours: Interaction as Meaning	194
4	Rhizomatic Action	196
11	A Few of My Favourite Things: The Feiticeiro/a as Foundation for ‘Pervert’ Characterisation	203
1	A Coherent Underpinning Paradigm for Screenwriting ‘Perversity’	203
2	From One Julie to Another: A Material-Discursive Paradigm	205
2.1	An Etymologically Based Semiotic Approach	208
2.2	A Revised Episteme for ‘Perversion’	209
3	An Episteme Founded in Empathic Orientation	211
4	The Feitiço as an Object Tool, Not as a Tool to Objectify	216
	Index	223

Constructing Transgressive Sexuality in Screenwriting

The Feiticeiro/a as Character

Theo, L.

2017, XXII, 226 p. 1 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-65042-5