

Contents

1	Introduction: Old Questions and New Frontiers in the Philosophy of Religion	1
	J. Aaron Simmons
 Part I A Philosophy of the Unsayable: Interpretations and Consequences
2	A Philosophy of the Unsayable	17
	Kevin Hart
3	Speaking About Silence (Sort of): When Does a Philosophy of the Unsayable Just Stop Being Philosophy?	23
	J. Aaron Simmons
4	William Franke and the Unfinished Philosophical Revolution of the West	39
	William C. Hackett

5	To Be and Not to Know, That Is the Question: Reading William Franke's A Philosophy of the Unsayable	57
	Sai Bhatawadekar
6	Is There a Logic of the Ineffable? Or, How Is it Possible to Talk About the Unsayable?	71
	Stephen Palmquist
7	Betwixt and Amidst: Mixed Genres of Sophia	81
	William Franke
 Part II Thinking the Apophatic: Hegel and Postmodernity
8	Is Hegel an Apophatic Thinker?	107
	Nahum Brown
9	Hegel and the Negation of the Apophatic	131
	Andrew W. Hass
10	Infinite Reduplication: Kierkegaard's Negative Concept of God	163
	Peter Kline
11	Heidegger's Apophaticism: Unsayings the Said and the Silence of the Last God	185
	Elliot R. Wolfson
12	Irenic Ironic Unsayable: A Correlation of Franke and Wolfson	217
	Lissa McCullough

13	The Apophatic Trace of Derrida and Zhuangzi David Chai	239
14	Apophatic Universalism East and West: Rethinking Universality Today in the Interstices Between Cultures William Franke	263
 Part III The Vanishing Point of the Apophatic in Poetry and Literature
15	Apophasis as a Means of Expressing Ecological Indeterminacy: Reading Modernist Poetry with William Franke's A Philosophy of the Unsayable Sabine Lenore Müller	295
16	The Astonished Silencing of Things: The Hypothesis of an Apophatic Tautology in the Poetry of Fernando Pessoa's Heteronym Alberto Caeiro Bruno Béu	321
17	Unspeakable Trash: Heidegger, Philip K. Dick, and the Philosophy of Horror Anthony Curtis Adler	339
18	Concluding Essay: New Apophatic Paths in Current Critical Thinking William Franke	371
	Index	389

Contemporary Debates in Negative Theology and Philosophy

Brown, N.; Simmons, J.A. (Eds.)

2017, XVI, 400 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-65899-5