

Contents

Part I On the Threshold

1 Why Japanese Psychotherapies? .....	3
References .....	6
2 Structure and Content of the Book .....	7
Reference .....	11

Part II Japan—A Land on the Edge of the World

3 Traveling in Silence—An Attempt for Cultural–Anthropological Reading of the Japanese Kokoro .....	15
3.1 “He Who Greets the Effulgent Dawn ... ” .....	15
3.2 Pathways of the Mountains, Pathways of the Heart .....	23
References .....	28
4 Silence Takes Shape—The Birth of the Japanese Psychotherapies .....	31
4.1 When “Therapeutic” Has Less to Do with Health .....	32
4.2 The Quiet Counterparts .....	35
References .....	40

Part III The Sun Rising at the Gate

5 Morita Therapy—Chopping Wood, Carrying Water. Life Happens .....	45
5.1 Origins and Development of Morita Therapy .....	45
5.1.1 Who Was Shōma Morita? .....	46
5.1.2 In-Hospital Treatment Methods of Morita Therapy— Key Characteristics and Purposes .....	51

5.2	Eastern Wisdom in Practice—The Arugamama Principle . . . . .	56
5.2.1	Shōma Morita's View on Human Nature. . . . .	58
5.2.2	Toraware and the Body–Mind Interconnectedness . . .	60
5.2.3	The Healing Forces Within . . . . .	62
5.2.4	“The Willows are Green, the Flowers are Red” and the Art of Resilience. . . . .	64
5.3	Morita Therapy and Metapsychiatry—A Brief Comparison . . .	69
5.4	Conclusion . . . . .	74
	References. . . . .	76
6	Naikan Therapy—Memento Mori. . . . .	81
6.1	Tracing Back the Roots of Naikan Therapy . . . . .	81
6.1.1	Jōdo Shinshū and the Kamakura Zeitgeist. . . . .	82
6.1.2	The Three Pillars of Jōdo Shinshū : Tariki , Muga , and Zange . . . . .	85
6.1.3	Mishirabe —The Courage to Face Death . . . . .	89
6.1.4	From Mishirabe to Naikan Therapy. . . . .	95
6.1.5	Naikan, Naikan Method, and Naikan Therapy. . . . .	100
6.1.6	On the Term Naikan : To Look and To Look . . . . .	102
6.1.7	Ishin Yoshimoto as the Twentieth Century's Shinran . . . . .	104
6.2	Naikan's Therapeutic Structure and Functions . . . . .	106
6.2.1	Naikan's External and Internal Therapeutic Structure—Key Factors . . . . .	107
6.2.2	Naikan Therapeutic Functions in the Light of the Body–Mind Interconnectedness . . . . .	118
6.3	Naikan Therapy and Freudian Psychoanalysis— A Brief Comparison . . . . .	128
6.4	Conclusion . . . . .	131
	References. . . . .	133
7	Dohsa-hou Therapy—Where Body Meets Soul. . . . .	139
7.1	Life Is Movement, Movement Is Life. . . . .	139
7.1.1	Sailing Uncharted Seas—Gosaku Naruse's Path to Dohsa-hou. . . . .	140
7.1.2	Dohsa-hou's Key Therapeutic Tools . . . . .	146
7.2	Beyond Words . . . . .	155
7.2.1	Karada-de-oboeru : The Memory of Body. . . . .	156
7.2.2	Intensive Dohsa-hou Camps— Communal Life as Therapy . . . . .	158
7.3	Dohsa-hou and Body–Mind Psychotherapy— A Brief Comparison . . . . .	162
7.4	Conclusion . . . . .	166
	References. . . . .	168

Part IV Into the Depths: Silence Beneficial, Silence Torturing

8	The Will to Rise—A Case Study at a Summer Dohsa-hou Camp	173
8.1	About this Study	173
8.1.1	Case Description	173
8.1.2	Aims and Objectives	174
8.2	Six Summer Camp Days in Ishigaki— Efforts and Outcomes	174
8.2.1	The Therapeutic Process	174
8.2.2	Discussion	177
8.3	Conclusion	179
9	Tortured Bodies, Tortured Souls—A Fieldwork Research on Written Naikan with Drug Addicts	181
9.1	Study I: Changed Attitudes	181
9.1.1	About This Study	182
9.1.2	The Written Naikan Practice	183
9.1.3	Discussion	183
9.2	Study II: Clinical Aspects and the Therapeutic Power of Silence	186
9.2.1	About This Study	188
9.2.2	The Group Interview	188
9.2.3	Discussion	195
9.3	Conclusion	201
	References	202
10	“Then Go and Wash Your Bowl”— Personal Experiences in Morita Therapy	205
10.1	Sansei Hospital—Brief History and Peculiarities	205
10.2	Two Weeks in Sansei Hospital	211
10.2.1	First Phase	213
10.2.2	Second Phase	216
10.2.3	Third Phase	220
10.3	Conclusion	224
	References	227

Part V In a Nutshell

11	Three Japanese Psychotherapies	231
	References	235
	Appendix I: Morita Therapy	237
	Appendix II: Naikan Therapy	243
	Appendix III: Dohsa-hou Therapy	251

Glossary . . . . . 257

Japanese-Language References . . . . . 263

Name Index . . . . . 271

Subject Index . . . . . 273

Japanese Psychotherapies

Silence and Body-Mind Interconnectedness in Morita,
Naikan and Dohsa-hou

Chervenkova, V.

2017, XX, 275 p. 57 illus., 29 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-981-10-3125-0