

Contents

Part I Introduction

Journeys with Wittgenstein: Assembling Sketches of a Philosophical Landscape . . . . .	3
Jeff Stickney and Michael A. Peters

Part II Biographical and Stylistic Investigations

Subjectivity After Descartes: Wittgenstein as a Pedagogical Philosopher . . . . .	29
Michael A. Peters
Wittgenstein as Educator . . . . .	43
Jeff Stickney
Wittgenstein's Philosophy: Viva Voce . . . . .	63
Beth Savickey
Wittgenstein's Hut . . . . .	79
Darius Rejali
Slow Learning and the Multiplicity of Meaning . . . . .	101
Richard Smith
Elucidation in the Transition of Wittgenstein's Philosophy . . . . .	115
Yasushi Maruyama
Wittgenstein's Metaphors and His Pedagogical Philosophy . . . . .	123
Nicholas C. Burbules
Imagination and Reality in Wittgenstein's Later Philosophy . . . . .	135
Suzy Harris
Do Your Exercises: Reader Participation in Wittgenstein's Investigations . . . . .	147
Emma McClure

“A Spontaneous Following”: Wittgenstein, Education and the Limits of Trust . . . . .	161
Stephen Burwood
Seeing Connections: From Cats and Classes to Characteristics and Cultures . . . . .	179
Paul Standish
Wittgenstein, Cavell and the Register of Philosophy: Discerning Seriousness and Triviality in Drama Teaching . . . . .	193
Adrian Skilbeck
Part III Wittgenstein in Dialogue with Other Thinkers
Wittgenstein’s Trials, Teaching and Cavell’s Romantic “Figure of the Child” . . . . .	211
Michael A. Peters
Wittgenstein, Education and Contemporary American Philosophy . . . . .	231
Áine Mahon
“This Is Simply What I Do.” on the Relevance of Wittgenstein’s Alleged Conservatism and the Debate About Cavell’s Legacy for Children and Grown-Ups . . . . .	241
Paul Smeyers
This Is Simply What I Do Too: A Response to Paul Smeyers . . . . .	261
Paul Standish
On “The Temptation to Attack Common Sense” . . . . .	275
Renia Gasparatou
Learning Politics by Means of Examples . . . . .	287
Michael Temelini
Wittgenstein and Foucault: The Limits and Possibilities of Constructivism . . . . .	305
Mark Olssen
Wittgenstein and Classical Pragmatism . . . . .	321
Jim Garrison
The Weight of Dogmatism: Investigating “Learning” in Dewey’s Pragmatism and Wittgenstein’s Ordinary Language Philosophy . . . . .	339
Viktor Johansson
How Should We Recognize the Otherness of Learners? Hegelian and Wittgensteinian Views . . . . .	353
Yasushi Maruyama

Liberation from Solitude: Wittgenstein on Human Finitude and Possibility . . . . .	365
Karim Dharamsi
Wittgenstein and Philosophy of Education: A Feminist Re-assessment . . . . .	379
Claudia Schumann
Meditating with Wittgenstein: Constructing and Deconstructing the Language Games of Masculinity . . . . .	389
Deborah Orr
Meditation on Wittgenstein and Education . . . . .	401
Heesoon Bai
 Part IV Training, Learning and Education
Wittgenstein, Learning and the Expressive Formation of Emotions . . . .	419
Steinar Bøyum
Wittgenstein and the Path of Learning . . . . .	437
Michael Luntley
Pedagogy and the Second Person . . . . .	453
David Simpson
Engagement, Expression, and Initiation . . . . .	467
Casey Doyle
Wittgenstein and Judging the Soundness of Curriculum Reforms: Investigating the Math Wars . . . . .	481
Jeff Stickney
Language and Mathematical Formation . . . . .	503
Sharon Rider
What Does Calculating Have to Do with Mathematics?
Wittgenstein, Dewey, and Mathematics Education in Sweden . . . . .	517
Tove Österman
&amp;c.: On Linguistic Regularity, Normativity and Language Acquisition . . . . .	527
Niklas Forsberg
Can an Ape Become Your Co-author? Reflections on Becoming as a Presupposition of Teaching . . . . .	539
Pär Segerdahl
Something Animal? Wittgenstein, Language, and Instinct . . . . .	555
Paul Standish

Universal Grammar: Wittgenstein Versus Chomsky . . . . .	573
Danièle Moyal-Sharrock
Learning Without Storing: Wittgenstein's Cognitive Science of Learning and Memory . . . . .	601
Ian O'Loughlin
How Scientific Frameworks 'Frame Parents': Wittgenstein on the Import of Changing Language-Games. . . . . .	615
Luc Van den Berge
Professional Learning and Wittgenstein: A Learning Paradox Emerges . . . . .	629
Sam Gardner
Wittgenstein on Teaching and Learning the Rules: Taking Him at His Word. . . . . .	643
Tracy Howell
And if L. Wittgenstein Helped Us to Think Differently About Teacher Education? . . . . .	659
Sébastien Chaliès and Stefano Bertone
More Insight into the Understanding of a Movement: Using Wittgenstein for Dance Education . . . . .	675
Carla Carmona
'Not to Explain, but to Accept': Wittgenstein and the Pedagogic Potential of Film . . . . .	687
Alexis Gibbs
Part V Religious and Moral Education
The Learner as Teacher . . . . .	703
Patrick Quinn
Imagining Philosophy of Religion Differently: Interdisciplinary Wittgensteinian Approaches. . . . . .	715
Mikel Burley
To Think for Oneself—Philosophy as the Unravelling of Moral Responsibility . . . . .	729
Niklas Toivakainen
Wittgenstein and Therapeutic Education . . . . .	743
Christopher Hoyt
Clarifying Conversations: Understanding Cultural Difference in Philosophical Education . . . . .	757
Thomas D. Carroll
Index . . . . .	771

A Companion to Wittgenstein on Education

Pedagogical Investigations

Peters, M.A.; Stickney, J. (Eds.)

2017, XXXIX, 782 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-981-10-3134-2