

Contents

Part I Exploring Mainstream Views of Student Engagement

1	Glimpsing Student Engagement . . . . .	3
	A Snapshot of Mainstream Engagement . . . . .	4
	Defining Engagement? . . . . .	7
	Theoretical Assumptions? . . . . .	9
	Purposes, Structures and Processes . . . . .	12
	Part 1: Exploring Mainstream Views of Student Engagement . . . . .	14
	Part 2: Questioning the Mainstream View . . . . .	14
	Part 3: Student Engagement Beyond the Mainstream . . . . .	15
	References . . . . .	16
2	Mainstream Perspectives and Frameworks . . . . .	21
	Major Meaning Perspectives in Mainstream Student Engagement . . . . .	23
	A Quantitative Generic Pedagogical Perspective . . . . .	23
	A More Qualitative Learning Focused Perspective . . . . .	25
	A Holistic Lifewide Experience Perspective . . . . .	27
	From Meaning Perspectives to Practice . . . . .	30
	Engagement: One Word, Many Meanings and Applications . . . . .	33
	References . . . . .	34
3	Towards an Emergent Mainstream Engagement Framework . . . . .	37
	Emergence: Ten Propositions for Enabling Student Engagement . . . . .	38
	Students' Invest in Their Own Learning . . . . .	39
	Teachers and Institutions Are Vital Enablers of Engagement . . . . .	43
	Engagement Requires Enabling External Environments . . . . .	46
	Emergence: A Conceptual Organizer for Mainstream Student Engagement . . . . .	50
	References . . . . .	51

Part II Questioning the Mainstream View

4	Higher Education in Neoliberal Times.	57
	Neoliberalism, Globalization and Governmentality in Higher Education	59
	Globalization.	59
	Governmentality	60
	Neoliberalism and Higher Education.	63
	Spontaneous Order Theory	63
	Public Choice Theory	64
	Agency Theory	64
	Human Capital Theory and Knowledge Capitalism.	65
	The Effects of Neoliberalism on Higher Education:
	A Case Study	65
	Theory to Practice.	70
	References.	72
5	Student Engagement and Neoliberalism: An Elective Affinity?	77
	Research Culture and Neoliberalism	78
	Student Engagement and Neoliberalism	81
	Elective Affinity: A Metaphor for the Relationship	83
	Student Engagement Practice in Neoliberal Times	86
	A Neoliberal Perspective of an Elective Affinity with Engagement.	86
	Elective Affinity from a Student Engagement Perspective.	87
	Looking Back, Looking Forward	90
	References.	90
6	A Critique of Mainstream Student Engagement.	95
	Selected Critiques in the Student Engagement Research Literature	96
	Technical Critiques	96
	Critiques Originating in Philosophical/Theoretical Concerns.	98
	Questioning an Academic Orthodoxy	100
	Elective Affinity, Normality and Governmentality.	101
	Quality and the Generic Learner.	104
	Engagement Pedagogy: Only a Partial Understanding of Student Learning.	105
	Questioning an Affinity with Psychology	106
	Mainstream Engagement Research: Anticipating a New Direction	108
	References.	109

Part III Student Engagement Beyond the Mainstream

7	Student Engagement Beyond the Mainstream . . . . .	115
	Jürgen Habermas: Reason, Communicative Action and Emancipatory Knowledge. . . . .	117
	Paulo Freire and Critical Pedagogy . . . . .	119
	bell hooks: Transgression, Feminism, Antiracism and Critical Pedagogy. . . . .	121
	Linda Tuhiwai Smith et al.: Decolonizing Research and Teaching Methodologies. . . . .	123
	Theodore Brameld: Education for the Future . . . . .	125
	Looking Forward: Ten Proposals for Action . . . . .	127
	References. . . . .	129
8	Towards a Critical Pedagogy of Engagement . . . . .	131
	Critical Reflections Leading to Action. . . . .	132
	Student Engagement Occurs in a Specific Ideological Climate . . . . .	132
	Student Engagement Visualizes a Pedagogy of Hope . . . . .	133
	Student Engagement Has an Emancipatory Sociocultural Ecological Meaning. . . . .	133
	Student Engagement Validates Emancipation . . . . .	134
	In Student Engagement One Size Does not Fit All . . . . .	134
	Four Emancipatory Purposes Characterize Student Engagement . . . . .	135
	Proposals for Critical Practice. . . . .	136
	Exposing Ideological Dominance . . . . .	137
	Examples of Practice. . . . .	138
	Developing Critical Consciousness . . . . .	138
	Examples of Practice. . . . .	139
	Fostering Empowered Learners . . . . .	139
	Examples of Practice. . . . .	140
	Acting to Change Society . . . . .	141
	Examples of Practice. . . . .	141
	Classroom Applications and Experiences . . . . .	142
	Student Engagement Beyond the Mainstream: A Synthesis. . . . .	142
	Discussion. . . . .	145
	End Note. . . . .	147
	References. . . . .	147
9	Towards a Critical Curriculum for Engagement . . . . .	151
	Purposes . . . . .	153
	Critical Purposes in Practice . . . . .	157
	Knowledge in a 'Big E' Critical Curriculum. . . . .	157
	Critical Knowledge in Practice . . . . .	162
	Values. . . . .	162

Critical Values in Practice. . . . .	164
An Example of a 'Big E' Critical Curriculum in Action. . . . .	165
References. . . . .	166
10 Supporting Engagement Through Critical Evaluation . . . . .	169
Connections. . . . .	170
Evaluation in the Neoliberal Mainstream. . . . .	172
Critique. . . . .	175
Towards a More Critical Approach to Evaluation. . . . .	178
Purposes . . . . .	179
Knowledge . . . . .	180
Values. . . . .	182
Planning Criteria for Critical Evaluation . . . . .	183
References. . . . .	184
11 Through Distributive Leadership to Critical Engagement . . . . .	187
Engaging Students in Leadership for Change . . . . .	188
Enacting Critical Student Engagement Using Distributive Leadership: Three Case Studies. . . . .	192
New Zealand: Student as Partner . . . . .	193
The United Kingdom: Student as Producer. . . . .	195
The United States: Student as Course Planner. . . . .	197
Making Meaning. . . . .	199
References. . . . .	200
12 Achieving Change: Opportunities, Challenges and Limits . . . . .	203
Making Change. . . . .	203
Towards a Practice Framework for Critical Engagement. . . . .	204
Stories of Critical Engagement in Practice . . . . .	208
Challenges and Limitations . . . . .	212
References. . . . .	214
Appendix A: What Students Say About the 10 Propositions         in Chap. 3 . . . . .	217
Appendix B: Published Work Informing the Argument         in the Book . . . . .	229
Index . . . . .	233

<http://www.springer.com/978-981-10-3198-4>

Student Engagement in Neoliberal Times
Theories and Practices for Learning and Teaching in Higher Education

Zepke, N.

2017, XVII, 234 p., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-981-10-3198-4