

PREFACE AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This collection arose from a conference held on 20 February 2015 at King's College London, organised by the editors. It was generously funded by the King's College London Faculty of Arts and Humanities, the King's College London History Department, the Royal Historical Society, the British Association for Irish Studies and the Institute of Irish Studies at the University of Liverpool. More than 100 individuals attended, with Professor Paul O'Leary delivering the keynote speech. Professors Ian McBride and Eugenio Biagini gave the plenary addresses. Thirty speakers presented research on the political, social, cultural and economic changes in modern British history from the eighteenth to the twentieth centuries.

We are grateful to our commissioning editor, Emily Russell, and the team at Palgrave, especially Carmel Kennedy. We would like to thank the anonymous manuscript reviewer, and those who provided reviews of the chapters: Andrew August, Toby Barnard, Joel Barnes, Richard Bourke, Ewen Cameron, Neil Evans, Matthew Glencross, Aaron Graham, Daniel Grey, Andrew Harrison, Julian Hoppit, Joanna Innes, Isaac Land, Daryl Leeworthy, Martin MacGregor, Peter Mandler, Lucie Matthews-Jones, John Morrill, Niall O'Flaherty, Simon Prince, Paul Readman and Vivienne Richmond.

Thank you too to everyone who participated in the conference, to the Irish Ambassador to the UK, Dan Mulhall, who formally launched the Four Nations History Network—and to all who have supported the Four Nations blog and network.

London, UK

Naomi Lloyd-Jones
Margaret M. Scull

Four Nations Approaches to Modern 'British' History
A (Dis)United Kingdom?

Lloyd-Jones, N.; Scull, M. (Eds.)

2018, XV, 274 p. 5 illus., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-1-137-60141-4

A product of Palgrave Macmillan UK