

Contents

1	Introduction	1
2	Themes to Initiate and Sustain the Journey	5
2.1	Our Relation with Music	6
2.2	Student Independence	7
2.3	Personal Authenticity	11
2.4	Final Thoughts	14
2.5	Before We Move on	15
	References	16
3	What Does Music Learning Look like?	19
3.1	Models of Learning	20
3.2	Language Learning	21
3.3	Learning to Play by Ear	23
3.4	Learning to Play the Piano	24
3.4.1	Background Stage	25
3.4.2	Foundation Stage	26
3.4.3	Reading Stage	29
3.5	Growth and Rest	33
3.6	Before We Move on	33
	References	34
4	What Does Teaching the Piano Look like?	35
4.1	Piano Teaching from a Historical Perspective	36
4.2	Piano Teaching and Democratic Relationships	38
4.3	Piano Teaching and the Model of Parenting	42
4.4	Final Thoughts	45
4.5	Before We Move on	46
	References	46

5	Piano Tone and Technique	47
5.1	Piano Tone	47
5.2	Piano Technique	48
5.2.1	Basic #1: Grab and Release	49
5.2.2	Basic #2: Walking Fingers	51
5.2.3	Basic #3: Arm Circles	53
5.2.4	Basic #4: Our Body	54
5.2.5	Basic #5: Posture	57
5.3	Final Thoughts	58
5.4	Before We Move on	59
	References	59
6	Teaching the Student	61
6.1	Separating Students' Development from Repertoire Requirements	63
6.2	Accumulated Repertoire, Review, and Refinement	65
6.3	Teachers as Student Advocates	67
6.4	Teachers as Student Agitators	68
6.5	Caring for Music	69
6.6	Final Thoughts	71
6.7	Before We Move on	72
	References	72
7	Taking Parents into Consideration	75
7.1	Historical Implications	77
7.2	Teachers and Parents in Musical Settings	78
7.3	Meaningful Conversations	80
7.3.1	Teachers' First Encounter with Parents	82
7.3.2	Real Life Families	83
7.3.3	Input from Parents Is Vital	84
7.3.4	Musical Cornerstones	84
7.3.5	Parent-Teacher Interviews	86
7.4	Final Thoughts	87
7.5	Before We Move on	87
	References	88
8	Coda	91
8.1	Flourishing	92
8.2	Final Thoughts	94
	Index	97

<http://www.springer.com/978-3-319-65532-1>

Fundamentals of Piano Pedagogy
Fuelling Authentic Student Musicians from the Beginning

Thompson, M.

2018, VIII, 99 p., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-319-65532-1