
Content

List of Figures and Tables XIII

Abbreviations XXI

Acknowledgements XXV

1 Introduction 1

 1.1 Motivation 1

 1.2 Research objectives 3

 1.3 Structure of the dissertation 7

2 Fundamentals of mergers & acquisitions 9

 2.1 Introduction 9

 2.2 Terminological basis of M&A 9

 2.2.1 Definition of the term M&A 10

 2.2.2 Categories of M&A 13

 2.3 Waves of M&A activity 18

 2.4 Phases of an M&A transaction 24

 2.4.1 Preparatory phase 25

 2.4.2 Transaction phase 29

 2.4.3 Integration phase 39

 2.5 Performance of M&A transactions 46

 2.5.1 Perspectives on M&A performance 47

 2.5.2 Definition of M&A performance 49

 2.5.2.1 Dimension of success 49

 2.5.2.2 Timeframe 50

 2.5.2.3 Performance benchmark 51

 2.5.3 Methods for M&A performance research 54

 2.5.3.1 Case- and survey-based research 54

VII

2.5.3.2	Financial statement-based research	56
2.5.3.3	Event study-based research	57
2.5.4	Summary of prior findings of event study-based research on M&A performance	60
2.5.4.1	General findings on M&A performance	60
2.5.4.2	Specific findings on cross-border M&A performance	61
2.6	Summary	62

3 Emerging multinational corporations and their cross-border

M&A activity	65
3.1 Introduction	65
3.2 Emerging markets and emerging multinational corporations	66
3.2.1 Emerging markets	67
3.2.1.1 Definition of the term 'emerging market'	67
3.2.1.2 Classification of emerging markets	71
3.2.1.3 Key drivers behind the rapid economic development in emerging markets	74
3.2.1.3.1 Institutional transformation	74
3.2.1.3.2 Technological transformation	76
3.2.1.3.3 Organizational transformation	78
3.2.1.4 Indicators of the rapid economic development in emerging markets	79
3.2.1.5 The 'decoupling hypothesis' of economic development in emerging markets	83
3.2.2 Emerging multinational corporations	85
3.2.2.1 Definition of the term 'emerging multinational corporation'	85
3.2.2.2 Classification of EMNCs	89
3.2.2.3 Unifying conditions and resulting behavioral characteristics of EMNCs	93
3.3 Internationalization of EMNCs	98
3.3.1 Waves of EMNC internationalization	99
3.3.2 Choice of entry mode in EMNC internationalization	103
3.3.2.1 Historic trend of OFDI by entry mode	103
3.3.2.2 Potential reasons behind EMNCs' increasing preference of M&A over greenfield OFDI	106
3.4 Prior research on the performance of EMNCs' domestic and cross-border M&A transactions	108
3.4.1 Case- and survey-based research	111

3.4.2	Financial statement-based research	117
3.4.3	Event study-based research	124
3.4.4	Summary of prior research findings on EMNCs' M&A performance	140
3.5	Summary	141
4	Theoretical frameworks and hypotheses generation	143
4.1	Introduction	143
4.2	Theoretical frameworks	144
4.2.1	Theories of the firm	145
4.2.1.1	Institutional economics	145
4.2.1.2	Industrial organization economics	147
4.2.1.3	Resource-based view	150
4.2.1.4	Behavioral economics	153
4.2.2	Theories of M&A motives	156
4.2.2.1	Rational M&A motives	157
4.2.2.1.1	Strategic M&A motives	157
4.2.2.1.2	Financial M&A motives	162
4.2.2.1.3	Personal M&A motives	167
4.2.2.2	Irrational M&A motives	169
4.2.2.2.1	Processual M&A motives	170
4.2.2.2.2	Macroeconomic M&A motives	171
4.2.3	Theories of the multinational enterprise	172
4.2.3.1	Eclectic paradigm	174
4.2.3.2	Theories of EMNCs	177
4.2.3.2.1	Extended eclectic paradigm	178
4.2.3.2.2	LLL framework and the springboard perspective	181
4.2.4	Summary of M&A motives	183
4.3	Hypotheses generation	186
4.3.1	Acquirer motivational determinants	187
4.3.2	Acquirer-related determinants	189
4.3.2.1	Acquirer free cash flows	190
4.3.2.2	Acquirer leverage	192
4.3.2.3	Acquirer firm size	194
4.3.2.4	Acquirer market valuation and quality of management	196
4.3.3	Target-related determinants	199
4.3.3.1	Target public status	199

4.3.3.2	Target geographic and cultural distance from acquirer	200
4.3.3.3	Target industry relatedness to acquirer	205
4.3.3.4	Target high tech industry affiliation	207
4.3.4	Transaction-related determinants	210
4.3.4.1	Transaction method of payment	210
4.3.4.2	Transaction premium	212
4.3.4.3	Transaction competition	214
4.3.4.4	Transaction size	216
4.4	Summary	219
5	The event study as a research method for measuring M&A performance	221
5.1	Introduction	221
5.2	Calculation of abnormal returns	223
5.2.1	Identification of the 'event' and 'event window'	223
5.2.2	Definition of sample firms and market index	227
5.2.3	Simulation of a 'normal' share price reaction	231
5.2.3.1	Statistical models	234
5.2.3.2	Economic models	237
5.2.4	Aggregation of abnormal returns	240
5.3	Statistical testing methodologies	242
5.3.1	Univariate analysis	243
5.3.1.1	Parametric tests	246
5.3.1.2	Non-parametric tests	250
5.3.2	Multivariate analysis	253
5.4	Underlying assumptions behind and issues with the event study method	258
5.4.1	Theoretical prerequisites	259
5.4.1.1	Market efficiency	259
5.4.1.2	Unanticipated events	261
5.4.1.3	Lack of confounding events	262
5.4.2	Technical issues	265
5.4.2.1	Illiquid trading	265
5.4.2.2	Event-date uncertainty	266
5.5	Summary	267

6 Acquisition motivation and performance of EMNCs in Western Europe and North America	269
6.1 Introduction	269
6.2 Sample selection and description	270
6.2.1 Selection methodology	270
6.2.2 Sample description	272
6.2.2.1 Sample transactions by year	272
6.2.2.2 Sample transactions by acquirer geography	274
6.2.2.3 Sample transactions by target geography	276
6.2.2.4 Sample transactions by industry groups	278
6.3 Analysis of EMNC acquirers' M&A motives	279
6.3.1 Analysis methodology	280
6.3.2 Review of acquisition motives	282
6.4 Statistical pre-analysis of internal validity	285
6.4.1 Quality of the market model regression	285
6.4.2 Normal distribution of abnormal returns	286
6.5 Analysis of EMNC acquirers' acquisition performance	292
6.5.1 Acquisition performance by acquirer geography	297
6.5.2 Acquisition performance by target geography	299
6.5.3 Acquisition performance by acquisition announcement period	302
6.6 Univariate analysis of determinants of EMNC acquirers' acquisition performance	305
6.6.1 Acquirer motivational determinants	306
6.6.1.1 Natural resource seeking motivation	306
6.6.1.2 Upstream knowledge seeking motivation	308
6.6.1.3 Downstream knowledge seeking motivation	310
6.6.1.4 End-customer market seeking motivation	313
6.6.1.5 Global value consolidation seeking motivation	315
6.6.2 Acquirer-related determinants	317
6.6.2.1 Acquirer free cash flows	317
6.6.2.2 Acquirer leverage	319
6.6.2.3 Acquirer firm size	322
6.6.2.4 Acquirer market valuation and quality of management	324
6.6.3 Target-related determinants	326
6.6.3.1 Target public status	326
6.6.3.2 Target geographic and cultural distance from acquirer	328

6.6.3.3	Target industry relatedness to acquirer	331
6.6.3.4	Target high tech industry affiliation	333
6.6.4	Transaction-related determinants	335
6.6.4.1	Transaction method of payment	336
6.6.4.2	Transaction premium	338
6.6.4.3	Transaction competition	341
6.6.4.4	Transaction size	343
6.7	Multivariate analysis of determinants of EMNC acquirers' acquisition performance	345
6.7.1	Pre-analysis of correlation matrix	347
6.7.2	Analysis of results of multivariate analysis	347
6.8	Summary of findings	350
6.8.1	Findings on EMNC acquirers' M&A motives	350
6.8.2	Findings on EMNC acquirers' acquisition performance	351
6.8.3	Findings on determinants of EMNC acquirers' acquisition performance	352
7	Thesis conclusion	359
7.1	Findings and contributions of the dissertation	359
7.1.1	Academic relevance	360
7.1.1.1	Literature review of prior findings on EMNCs' acquisition performance	360
7.1.1.2	Motivation analysis for EMNC acquirers from multiple emerging markets	361
7.1.1.3	Acquisition performance analysis for EMNC acquirers from multiple emerging markets	362
7.1.1.4	Applicability of the event study method for research on EMNCs' acquisition performance	363
7.1.2	Practical relevance	366
7.2	Limitations of the dissertation	367
7.3	Future research on EMNCs' acquisitions into developed markets	369
	Appendix	371
	Publication bibliography	387

Acquisitions by Emerging Multinational Corporations
Motivation and Performance of Transactions in Western Europe and North America

Distler, J.

2018, XXVI, 429 p. 80 illus., Softcover

ISBN: 978-3-658-19111-5