

Preface

Writing this dissertation was a very valuable experience. After years in consulting, I returned to scientific research and was finally in charge of my very own “project.” I must admit that it was more challenging than I expected – with many ups and downs. Accomplishing this project would have not been possible without the support and guidance of the people around me whom I would like to thank.

To begin with, I would like to thank my first supervisor, Prof. Dr. Andreas Hack, for always being approachable, for very helpful deep-dive discussions, for his inspiring attitude and for finding the right balance between freedom and guidance.

I also would like to thank my second supervisor, Prof. Dr. Arist von Schlippe, for allowing me complete freedom in developing and testing my research model while, at the same time, providing me with valuable feedback and input when I needed it.

I am grateful to Dr. Nils Andreas Kraiczy who supervised my dissertation on a “day-to-day” basis. He has done an amazing job and I would like to thank him for teaching me statistical models, for the numerous discussions on potential research models, and for his patience and pragmatism.

Above all, I would like to thank my mother, Beate Rosina, for being my closest “emotional” companion and for constantly encouraging me. She was also a great sparring partner and her feedback and ideas were extremely helpful to me. I also would like to thank her for being an inspiring role model in many ways – as a mother, a friend, a woman - and for teaching me how to master life’s challenges with positive energy.

Moreover, I would like to thank my family – in particular my father Miroslav, my sister, Karoline, and my brother, Maximilian, my grandmother, Karin Schneider, as well as my husband-to-be, Daniel Schellong. I am grateful to have you in my life and I thank you for your love, trust and encouragement.
