

Acknowledgments

This book is a slightly edited version of my PhD thesis that I achieved at the Albrecht Mendelssohn Bartholdy Graduate School of Law of the University of Hamburg. First and foremost, I wish to thank my supervisors, Prof. Dr. Stefan Oeter and Prof. Dr. Karl-Heinz Ladeur for their great support. Prof. Dr. Ladeur was always quite supportive and patient, and his immense knowledge has always illuminated my way. Prof. Dr. Oeter was very encouraging and cooperative at all steps of this project, and I was very lucky to have such an open-minded and wise supervisor. I should note that writing this dissertation under their supervision has left a great impact on me, and this inquiry could not have been achieved without their valuable contributions and mentorships.

Apart from my supervisors, my sincere thanks go to Prof. Dr. Andreas Fischer-Lescano, Prof. Dr. David Nelken, and Prof. Dr. Chris Thornhill. They hosted me in their institutes, dealt with my research problems, and they had a significant role in the construction of my intellectual world. I am also grateful to Prof. Dr. Hauke Brunkhorst for him handling my questions and giving me the chance to discuss various points of my research in his colloquiums. Furthermore, I must express my thanks to Prof. Dr. Turgut Tarhanli and Prof. Dr. Mithat Sancar for their encouragement and insightful contributions at the earlier phase of this project; and also to Prof. Dr. Anne Peters and Prof. Dr. Armin von Bogdandy, the editors of the book series “Beiträge zum ausländischen öffentlichen Recht und Völkerrecht.”

A profound compensation of this project has been that I got to know wonderful people during my research in various cities and countries. Their amazing cooperation and sincere help have been engraved into my memory: Thank you to the Family Wischnath, Bojan Gavrilovic, Marco and Corina Johns, Wiebke Greeff, Burak Nisanci and Jörg Kitlinski. Your thoughtfulness and friendships were key to overcome many difficulties.

The most special acknowledgments go to my family. I am grateful to my father for all his support to this day; he has always been there for me whenever I needed him. Finally, I wish to thank my dearly beloved ones, Eylem and Maya, who have always provided me with an unending inspiration. This book is, above all, the product of their patience. Their love was and will always be my greatest support and source of inspiration.
