Contents

1 New Step 1
1.1 Freedom of Migration 1
1.1.1 Peasants Own Their Labor 1
1.1.2 Introduction of the Migrant Worker Permit 2
1.1.3 Peasants Need to Buy the Right of Migration 4
1.1.4 Possible Measures Government Department Should Take 7
1.1.5 Social Cost of Reform 9
1.2 Motivations for Migration 10
1.2.1 Outbound Migration for Further Development 10
1.2.2 Outbound Migration for Making a Living 12
1.2.3 Outbound Migration for Special Reasons 14
1.2.4 Expectations for Life 16
1.3 The Migration Mechanism 17
1.3.1 Characteristics of Initial Migration 18
1.3.2 Characteristics of Remigration Methods 22
1.3.3 Needs of Migrant Workers for Organizational Management 25
1.4 Migration and Rural Economy 27
1.4.1 Introduction 27
1.4.2 Characteristics of the Surveyed Area 29
1.4.3 Basic Trends 32
1.4.4 Income and Labor Outflow 37
1.4.5 Labor Migration and the Economic Behavior of Rural Households 41
1.4.6 Conclusion and Policy Recommendations 45
1.5 "The Migrant Worker Rush" in the Eyes of Peasants 47
1.5.1 Sampling Methods and Sample Characteristics 48
1.5.2 Changes to Organizational Mode of Migrant Workers in Recent Two Years 50

1.5.3 Scale and Quantity Changes of Peasants' Outbound Migration in the Past Two Years . . . 51
1.5.4 Feeling and Evaluation of Migrant Workers About Urban Life and Government Administration . . . 55
1.6 Guidance of Migration . . . 59
1.7 Social Support for Labor Migration . . . 62
1.8 Blazing the Trail Ahead . . . 63
Column I: Migrant Workers' Schools . . . 65

2 New Life . . . 67
2.1 Peasants in Policy . . . 67
2.2 Challenge from Immigration . . . 70
2.2.1 More Than Half of Peasants Become Migrant Workers in Order to Counteract the Decline of Living Standards . . . 70
2.2.2 Unusual Reasons for Migration . . . 70
2.2.3 Instable Factors of Migrant Workers . . . 71
2.2.4 The Poor Performance of Government Interference . . . 73
2.2.5 Migration Is Conducive to Birth Control . . . 74
2.2.6 Preliminary Observations . . . 75
2.3 Migrants' Irregular Behavior . . . 76
2.3.1 Troubled Migrants and Crime Rate Assessment . . . 76
2.3.2 An Empirical Analysis of Migrant Offenders . . . 78
2.4 'Troubled' Population in Migration . . . 80
2.4.1 Challenges in Urban Social Order . . . 80
2.4.2 Characteristics of Migratory Crime . . . 81
2.4.3 Social Factors in Migratory Crime . . . 82
2.5 Distinctive Survival Means of Migrant Workers . . . 85
2.5.1 Migrant Workers' Impact on Social Security . . . 85
2.5.2 The Characteristics of Migrant Workers' Security Being Threatened . . . 87
2.6 Management Logic of Government . . . 88
2.6.1 Evaluation of Migrant Workers' Crime . . . 88
2.6.2 Management Department: Structure and Action . . . 89
2.7 Exploration Amidst Crisis . . . 98
2.8 Desks of Migrant Workers . . . 101
2.8.1 The Rapid Development of Migrant Schools . . . 101
2.8.2 The Problems of Urban Compulsory Education System . . . 102
2.8.3 The Problems Existing in the Migrant Schools . . . 103
2.8.4 Policy Recommendations . . . 104
2.9 Marginalization of Basic Education . . . 105
2.9.1 The Overview of Schools . . . 107
2.9.2 Schools Administrators . . . 110

2.9.3 Educational Decisions of Migrant Families 114
2.9.4 Migrant Children 116
2.9.5 Questions and Recommendations 120
Column II: The Stories of the Unplanned Birth 123

3 New Governance 139
3.1 The Institutional Environment for Rural Migration 139
3.1.1 Employment Restriction Problems 139
3.1.2 Identity Status (the Household Registration System) Constraints 141
3.1.3 Issue of Education for Children of Rural Migrants 142
3.1.4 Migrant's Housing Problems 144
3.2 Migrant Workers' Hope for the Government 145
3.2.1 Effective Protection to the Legal Rights and Interests of Migrant Workers 145
3.2.2 Equal Treatment of Migrant Workers and Local Residents 146
3.2.3 Relaxing the Hukou Restriction to Allow Peasants Freely Enter Cities, in Places Where Conditions Are Permitted, Abolishing the Restriction Is Absolutely Possible 147
3.2.4 Good Security 148
3.2.5 The Hope of Faster Development of Their Hometown 148
3.3 Rural Migration and Urban Employment 149
3.3.1 Basic Characteristics of the New Phase 149
3.3.2 New Problems and New Conflicts 154
3.3.3 Intensifying Urban–Rural Job Competition 157
3.4 Coordination of Urban and Rural Employment 159
3.4.1 The Total Migrant Population Remains Large 160
3.4.2 Increasingly Exclusive Urban Jobs Opportunities 161
3.4.3 The Two Consequence of Job Reservation in Cities 162
3.4.4 The Promotion of Urban Employment Should Be Based on Urban–Rural Coordination 164
3.5 'Laborers' and 'Citizens' 165
3.6 Call for New Administration 167
3.6.1 Understanding of Order Conflicts 167
3.6.2 Management Concept: A Review of Ideas 169
3.6.3 Discussion on Governance Change 174
3.7 The Wrong Path of Government Administration 178
3.7.1 Reform Effect of the Peasants' Mobility 178
3.7.2 Changes of Scale in the Flow of Peasants 180
3.7.3 The Management Act of Certain Local Areas 181

3.7.4 Nationwide Management Efforts 183
3.7.5 Few Comments on Improving Management 185
Column III: The Stories of the Sheltered 188

4 New Epoch 193
4.1 A New Starting Point for Policies 193
4.2 New Demands in Society 195
4.3 New Problems in Employment 202
4.3.1 Migrant Workers 203
4.3.2 Enterprises 205
4.3.3 The Government 208
4.4 New Characteristics of Unemployment 210
4.4.1 New Characteristics of Unemployment 211
4.4.2 Reasons for Unemployment 213
4.4.3 Social Impacts of Unemployment 215
4.5 New Problems in Training 217
4.5.1 Training Experience of Migrant Workers 218
4.5.2 Operation of Government-Led Training 220
4.5.3 Training Performance Management 222
4.6 A Review of the Thirty Years 226
Column IV: The Stories of Vegetable Vendors 232

Postscript 241

http://www.springer.com/978-981-10-4438-0

The New Fate of Peasants

Zhao, S.

2018, XXXI, 243 p. 6 illus., Hardcover
ISBN: 978-981-10-4438-0