

Contents

1	Introduction	1
1.1	Personal Interest in This Topic	1
1.2	Contextualizing the Study	3
1.2.1	Globalization and ELT in China	3
1.2.2	Culture of Learning and CETs' Classroom Practices	8
1.2.3	College English in China	10
1.2.4	Unique Features of College ELT in China	11
1.3	Research Focus	13
	References	14
2	Conceptualizing (Non-)Native Speaker Identity	19
2.1	Theorizing Identity	19
2.2	NS Versus NNS	21
2.2.1	(Non-)Native Speakerhood in the ENL/ESL/EFL Framework	22
2.2.2	(Non-)Native Speakerhood in the WE and EIL/ELF Framework	23
2.3	Language, Ideology and Power	26
2.4	Features of and Differences Between NESTs and NNESTs	28
2.4.1	Research Based on NNESTs' Self-perceptions	28
2.4.2	Research Based on Students' Perceptions	32
2.4.3	Summary of the Features of and Differences Between NESTs and NNESTs in the Existing Literature	35
2.5	NNESTs' Professional Identity	36
2.5.1	Existing Literature	36
2.5.2	A Poststructuralist View on NNESTs' Professional Identity	39
2.6	Summary	41
	References	42

3 Presenting the Study	47
3.1 Research Design and Settings	47
3.2 Interview-Survey-Interview Procedure to Elicit Students' Perceptions	49
3.2.1 Questionnaire Survey	49
3.2.2 Follow-up One-to-One Interviews	53
3.3 Methods Used to Elicit CETs' Self-perceptions	53
3.3.1 Settings and Participants	54
3.3.2 Diary Study	55
3.3.3 Focus Group Interviews	56
3.3.4 One-to-One Interviews	57
3.4 Classroom Observation	57
3.5 The Pilot Study	59
3.6 Analysis of the Data	61
3.6.1 Analysis of the Data Collected from Students	61
3.6.2 Analysis of the Data Collected from CETs	62
3.6.3 Analysis of the Data Collected from Classroom Observation	64
3.7 Summary	64
References	64
4 Voices of Chinese College Students	67
4.1 Features of NESTs and CETs According to Students' Perceptions	68
4.1.1 Features of NESTs	68
4.1.2 Features of CETs	78
4.2 Differences Between NESTs and CETs According to Students' Perceptions	87
4.3 Summary	90
References	93
5 Voices of Chinese English Teachers	95
5.1 Features of NESTs and CETs According to CETs' Self-perceptions	96
5.1.1 Features of NESTs	96
5.1.2 Features of CETs	102
5.2 Differences Between NESTs and CETs According to CETs' Self-perceptions	110
5.3 Summary	114
References	116
6 Chinese English Teachers' Professional Identity	117
6.1 NS/NNS Identity	118
6.2 CETs' Perceptions of Their Professional Identity	123

6.3	CETs' (Re)Construction of Their Professional Identity Within the Dominant Ideology and Disempowering Discourses of Native-Speakerism	130
6.4	Summary	138
	References.	141
7	Possible Impacts of Globalization.	145
7.1	A New Generation of Students Who Have Acquired Fairly High Proficiency in English	145
7.2	A Call for a High Proficiency in English at Both Micro and Macro Level	147
7.3	Ideological Changes at Both Micro and Macro Level.	148
	References.	150
8	Recommendations and Reflections	153
8.1	Cultivating a Critical View of the Dominant Ideology and Disempowering Discourses of Native-speakerism Among CETs	153
8.2	Arousing Awareness of WE and EIL/ELF	154
8.3	Taking a Liminal View on China English and Chinese English Speakers' NNS Identity	156
8.4	Functioning Positively in Glocalizing CLT.	158
8.5	Promoting More Collaboration Between NESTs and CETs	160
8.6	Limitations	161
	References.	162
	Appendix A: Benke and Medgyes's Questionnaire (2005, p. 211)	165
	Appendix B: Features of and Differences Between NESTs and CETs Identified from Students' Focus Group Interviews	167
	Appendix C: Pilot Student Questionnaire	169
	Appendix D: Student Questionnaire	175
	Appendix E: Sample Transcript and Key for Classroom Observation Transcripts.	183
	Appendix F: Mean, Median, Mode and SD Scores for All Statements in NESTs' Questionnaire Set.	185
	Appendix G: Mean, Median, Mode and SD Scores for All Statements in CETs' Questionnaire Set	187
	Glossary.	189
	Index	191

Native and Non-Native English Speaking Teachers in China

Perceptions and Practices

Huang, Z.

2018, XV, 192 p. 1 illus. in color., Hardcover

ISBN: 978-981-10-5283-5